And the rope was strong enough to suspend the man in mid air until an army of medical men said he was dead. The hanging was the most sensational and interesting ever known in Alabama, and will make one of the most thrilling chapters in the criminal history of the state. In THE CONSTITUTION of this morning was printed the story of Hawes's last day on earrh, and the story was the only correct one put in type, so far. The information upon which the story was written, was given me by Sheriff Smith, who, fully appreciating the worth of

THE CONSTITUTION as a news discriminator, has granted me favors he has not shown the representatives of the Birmingham papers.

Early this morning I called at the jall where I met Sheriff Smith, who said: How would you like to see Dick this morn

Of course nothing could have been more sagerly desired, and when the desire was put in words, Mr. Smith said:
"So far I have refused all newspaper reporters admission to Hawes's cell and for that I have been abused. But I tell you frankly I had rather take that abuse than the great re-But," he went on after a short pause, "if—

If you—want to see him a short time, I—

"What?" he was asked as he paused.
"I will," (and he smiled and looked over his shoulder as though half expecting to see some one behind him) "I will let you go up." IN HAWES'S CELL.

Five minutes later I approached the jail from the side on which there was no crowd, There was no one to guess at my mission, as I came up through the vacant lot towards the new jail building, now only one story high. Inside that building I heard some one call. The call was expected, and following the voice, I found myself near the jail door without having attracted any attention. A min-ute later I was in the jail, and in another minute ascending the stairway to Hawes's cell.

In the cell were Rev. Dr. Slaughter and Rev. Dr. Purser. The two ministers and Hawes were kneeling at the cot, Hawes be tween the two. Dr. Slaughter was praying, and the prayer was a fervent, deep one. Every now and then Hawes's "amen" chimed in. That amen was in an even, steady tone, indi-

Sheriff Smith stopped because the prayer was going on. As Dr. Slaughter finished the supplication, and the three men arose from their knees, Hawes's eyes fell upon the sheriff "Oh, Joe," he said, "I am glad to see you.

"Yes, Dick, I'm here again," said the sheriff,
"and I have brought an old friend to see you."

As the sheriff spoke, Hawes's eyes fell upon me, and pushing his hand through the bars, he said.

"I'm glad to see you. I haven't seen you since soon after that terrible riot. How are For a minute we grasped hands, and I then asked:

"Dick, how do you feel?"
"Better than when you saw me last. Then everything was uncertain, but there was hope.
Now everything is certain and there is no hope."

"And you are willing to die?"
"Yes, ready and willing. Death is my justice and I shall try to meet it like a man."
"Be brave, Dick," said the sheriff.
"I never knew fear in my life," said Hawes,
"and at this time I must be brave. I have to

"I have written all that out, and after I am dead you will know."
"But tell me now. Your old friends in Atlanta are auxious to know."
"It is all in the statement I have written."
"Where is that statement?"
"One of my lawyers has its, and it has to be put in book form and sold for my boy, Willie.
Then everybody will know it."
"But say," you tall was exerting. Tell me.

"But can't you tell me something. Tell me who did it?"
"Let's talk about something else. I may have something to tell you when I am down there on the gallows," and Hawes jerked his thumb over his shoulder. Pausing a second, be down there? I mean are you going to see me hung?"

When he began the question his tone was even and easy, but before finishing it he became disconcerted, and began the change indicated then as if growing desperate. He changed again, and in a jerky, mappy, way, asked the question direct.

"I gness so, Dick," was the answer.

"Well, I am glad you are, becanse I want the people to know the truth. I want them to see it as you do. I don't want to be misrepreseted."

reseted."

Then Hawes began talking about Atlantians. He asked about Fred Knogg, Tom Shivers, Jim Bell, Wm. Dunlap, Z. Martin, the Stoval boys, Jim Crozier, Barrett, and other railroad men. As each name dropped from his lips, he recalled some pleasant incident of his relationship with the old friends. The conversation was productive of nothing new, and the sheriff withdrew, leaving Hawes with his spiritual advisers.

HAWES LAST NIGHT.

Hawes passed his last night on earth as my telegrams of last night indicated. About 3 o'clock he arose from his cot, and, kneeling, prayed for a half hour. Then he opened his Bible and read awhile. Closing the book, he moved to the deathwatch, saying:

"Lem, I believe I am growing restless. I haven't slept at all hardly."

"It's down Dick and try to get some rest.

haven't slept at all hardly."

"Lie down, Dick, and try to get some rest.

You may need it."

"Oh my, I hope not," said Hawes, lying down again. In a short time his breathing was even and heavy, and the deathwatch says he slept soundly until dawn. Soon after dawn he turned ower on his cot, and with his eyes resting upon a window, remained motionless a while. Suddenly he threw the coyers from him, and arising, began dressing. As he drew on his breeches he said:

"Lem, how is it outside? Clear?"

"Cloudy," was the answer.

"Raining?"

"No, but it's getting cold."

PREPARING FOR THE DAY.

After dressing, Hawes kneeled and prayed For awhile his prayer was in a whisper. He seemed to warm up with the petition, and began praying aloud. His voice was calm and even, but there was a solidity about it indicating seriousness. About 7 o'cleck Deputy Smith went to the cell and asked Hawes to order a breakfast. He hesitated a little and said:

"This will be my last meal." Then pausing he looked up at the top of the cell, and began expressing doubt as to his desire to eat. However, he gave an order and half an hour later the meal was served. It was a tempting one. Sheriff Smith had it prepared himself, hoping that Hawes would relish it. As the tray went into the jail the odor arising was just the thing to tempt a hungry man, or to make a man hungry. The bill was tenderloin steak, broiled ham, poached eggs, offee and toast. Hawes glanced over the tray, and took a bite of the ham. One of the eggs he lifted in a spoon and swallowed it down. It was apparent, however, that he was not hungry.

The coffee he drank, simply because it was easy to swallow. Then he pushed the tray from him, and getting up off his stool, knelf down and prayed. Then in prayer and reading he passed the time until his spiritual advisers called. There was no other interruption then until Sheriff Smith gave me a chance to see him.

By nine o'clock a crowd of a thousand people had congregated about the jail, and an ple had congregated about the jail, and an army of policemen was on duty to keep them at a safe distance. No one was allowed to pass that line of officers except those who had passes. The crowd increased every minute, and by 11 o'clock there were over three thousand persons in the neighborhood of the jail and courthouse. By 12 the crowd was nearly twice that many. As the clock struck the noon hour, the deputies on the jail doors opened them to the press representatives.

LOOKING AT THE GALLOWS. These filed in, and were shown around t the gallows. The gallows was planted on the north side of the jail, between the building north side of the jail, between the building and a high wall, twenty feet away. It was about ten feet square, with uprights in what might be called the ends. These uprights supported a crossbar, to which the rope was attached. The trap, about four feet square, was held up by an iron pin, to which a string was fastened. This string went through a window in the basement. In the basement were four mon, and one of that four pulled the string when the word was given, but which one of the four Sheriff Smith himself does not know. The gallows was painted red, and was the same Gilbert Love was hung upon a week ago. In front of the gallows two barrels were placed, and upon these was a long board. Behind this board were chairs, and these were for the press. Paper was upon the rough desk, and every convenience for the news men was complete.

THE MARCH TO THE GALLOWS. At 11 o'clock, Deputy Lockhart entered the jail and interrupted the devotional exercises long enough to read the death warrant. When the deputy informed Hawes of the object of his mission, he said: "Stand up, Dick."
Hawes arose, and placing his hands behind him, looked the officer in the face. Then Lockhart read the death warrant. Hawes Lockhart read the death warrant. Hawes heard it through without a tremor or without moving a muscle.

As the hands upon the court house clock moved on after the hour of twelve, the crowd outside became impatient, and gave expression to it in yells. Yell after yell went up from all sides of the jail, with only a brief silence between them. As the hands of the clock indicated twelve thirty, the ticket holders on the inside began to manifest their impatience, too, but they had but little more time to wait.

At a quarter after twelve Ed Griffin went upon the scaffold, and adjust. It he rope to the beam. It was made tight by an iron staple.

Griffin is the man who built the scaffold. Griffin was a member of the jury that convicted Hawes. Griffin is now one of Smith's deputies, and today helped to hang the man, whom he, as a juror, said he should die. After adjusting the rope Griffin stepped down. Then Sheriff Smith went upon the gallows, and examined everything. He slipped the noose up and down to see that it would move easily. Then he disappeared through the jail door.

Just then the rain, the heavy dark clouds had been promising all the morning, began to fall, and a deputy mounted the scaffold pulled off his rubber coat and twisted it around the rope to keep the rain off. Five minutes later some one in the rear called out:

"Umbrellas down there!"

The cry was taken up and repeated by a dozen voices. Then the people began to move to one side. Hawes was coming. He was walking to his death.

walking to his death

ON THE GALLOWS. At forty minutes after 12 Sheriff Smith went to Hawes's cell. He and the ministers were praying. One of them observed the sheriff's presence, and divining the cause, closed the prayer. Then, as they arose, the sheriff said:

"Well, Dick, I guess we will go down."
The time had come, but Hawes showed his

The time had come, but Hawes showed his nerve again.

"All right, Mr. Smith," he said.

Hawes had taken off his prison garb during the morning, and after giving himself a bath, put on his new suit, the one in which he was to die, and in which he is to be buried. The cell door was thrown open and Hawes walked out. As he stepped out he said to Dr. Slaughter:
"Doctor, you and Dr. Purser come with "Doctor, you and Dr. Purser come with "Doctor, you and Dr. Purser come with me."

Then, I between Deputy Love and Sheriff Smith, Hawes descended the stairway, the ministers following. Out into the rain the procession walked, and to the gallows they came through the crowd. Hawes was bareheaded, and his hair was combed with an exactness that showed the shape of his head perfectly. Upon the left lappel of his coat he wore a small bouquet of geraniums and red flewers. From the pocket on that side the corners of a white slik handkerchief showed. It was tastefully arranged. In fact, Hawes never entered a parlor more carefully dressed than he was when he went upon that scaffold. As he came through the crowd he moved with a firm, easy step that same graceful, swinging walk his friends all remember so well. As he neared the gallows he glanced up, and as he approached the steps he stopped a minute, saying something to Sheriff Smith. The sheriff turned to the crowd, calling out:

"Canul Mc Can come here"

steps he stopped a minute, saying something to Sheriff Smith. The sheriff turned to the crowd, calling out:

"Cann! Mr. Cann, come here."

Mr. Cann is the city editor of the Age-Herald—a man who knows what a scoop is only when he has been scooped. He is known as "the silent eye." Cann crawled under the board and went to Hawes. The two men shook hands, and Hawes said:

"I want to die at peace with all men, and I want to say that I forgive you for what you have written about me."

Then Hawes went upon the scaffold, accompanied by the sheriff, a deputy, and the two ministers. He walked with a firm step. There was less trepidation about him than about any of the one hundred men in the inclosure, and it was apparent to all. His nerve was remarkable, and those who saw him could not keep from admiring it.

THE PERLIMINARY ARRANGEMENTS.

As he stepped to the front of the gallows, he

The PRELIMINARY ARRANGEMENTS.

As he stepped to the front of the gallows, he moved his head to one side to avoid the rope. Then as he stood at the front of the gallows, Sheriff Smith, standing beside him, said:

"Dick, have you anything to say?"
Hawes raised his right hand to his mouth, and gave his mustache a twist. There was not a tremor in the movement. Never in his life did he twist that beard with a quieter nerve. Then looking over the crowd calmly he said:

"I only want to say to the congregation that I have written out a full statement of this whole thing, and it is a true one. I don't wan any man in the world to think that I died with a lie on my lips. That is all I have to say."

That was all. No man in that entire crowd could have spoken as evenly and calmly as he "Have you anything else to say, Dick?" asked Deputy Tom Smith from the crowd.

"Nothing," answered Hawes. The crowd began to show nervousness. The awful moment was nigh, but Hawes stood there calmly.

He alone was unmoved. Dr. Slaughter advanced, saying, "Let us pray." Then a fervent, soul-stirring prayer for the man who was to go to his God so soon, went up. It was a prayer those present will never forget. As the minister prayed Hawes looked over the crowd. He wid not bow his head, and he never closed his eyes. Frequently he gave his moustache a pull with first one hand and then the other. Before the prayer was half over, he looked down and caught my eye.

men observed it. Then, as the minister closed his prayer, Hawes turned to Sheriff Smith and said someting. Mr. Smith called me to the scaffold, saying:

"Mr. Hawes wauts to talk to you."

I went upon the scaffold and the doomed man met me. Calling me by name, he said:

"You have been friendly to me since this trouble began, and I want to thank you for your kindness."

Hesitating a minute, he said:

Hesitating a minute, he said:

"I want you now to tell the people just how I died. See that I am not misrepresented and that I am properly cared for. Will you do that?" "I'll do anything I can for you, Dick, because it will soon be over."
"I'll try. I want you to remember my boy, my poor Willie, and my brother and his wife."

A tear came in his eye as he mentioned his boy.

"Remember them, and see that the truth is told about this."

"Where is that statement, Dick?"

"It will be given to the public. The sense of it is what I told Jim Hawes." The interview was, by no means pleasant, and shaking him by the hand, I bade him good-by.

ADJUSTING THE ROPE.

Hawes walked to the front of the scaffold, and Sheriff Smith adjusted the rope. The prisoner was calm. There was no excitement about him. He was not even pale. As the rope touched his flesh, he gave his head a nervous, uneasy shake, shaking his head as though trying to adjust the rope. Then his face began turning red, very red. A deputy stooped down, and tied a cord around his legs below his knees. A pair of handcuffs were drawn from a daputy's pocket, and Hawes was asked to hold out his hands. He extended them with a particle of nervousness. First the left wrist was encircled, then the right. This brought the hands close together, and Hawes interlocked his fingers. Then a cord was placed around his arms at the elbows, and tied behind his back. Everything was ready except the black cap. "How does that feel, Dick?" asked the sheriff.

Hawes gave his head another twitch.

"The rope around my neck is a little too tight," he answered.

There was no tremor in his voice. Everybody in the crowd heard him. Then Sheriff Smith took a black silk cap out of his pecket. Hawes saw it, and looking down at Cann, said.

"Now, Cann, don't misrepresent me when I

"Now, Cann, don't misrepresent me when I am daad."

That was the last man Dick Hawes ever looked at, and the last man to whom he spoke direct, except when he told the officers goodby. As the sheriff raised the cap, Hawes said: "I want you all to shun whisky and vile women. I wish I had."

The conversed interest and Hawes's vision of women. I wish I had."

The cap was adjusted, and Hawes's vision of those before him was shut out forever. Then he shook hands with Love, then Sheriff Smith told him good-by. Just as the sheriff was stepping back to give the signal to the man in the basement to pull the string, Hawes called out:

out:
"Joe, let me stand here a minute, please."
His voice was still and steady, but it was muffled by the black cap.
THROUGH THE TRAP.
The sheriff waited a minute and then began,

The sheriff waited a minute and then began, "One—two—three."

as the word three was uttered the string pulled, the trap dropped and Hawes's body went up an inch or two, and then settled again at the end of the rope. There it turned to the left and then to the right, and then became motionless. His legs were drawn up in a faint effort to kick twice and then his slippered feet settled. His chest heaved up and down for a minute, while his stomach rose and fell like a bellows. The rope had slipped until the knot was back of the head, and his chin was thrown upon his chest.

It was 12:58 when the drop fell, and in four-teen minutes the doctors said he was dead, and Sheriff Smith cut the rope. Four men received Hawes as the rope was cut, and he was carried into a room in the jail building, and laid upon a hed. Then the car and room and laid upon a bed. Then the cap and rope were removed. Hawes's face had a calm look. There was no indication of that fear or horror upon it which was on his wife and children's faces when they were found. The body remained there all night.

TO BE BROUGHT TO ATLANTA. To be BROUGHT TO ATLANTA.

Tomorrow morning it will be turned over to Mr. Frank Hilburn of Atlanta, and taken home for burial. The hanging was done with a neatness and perfection rarely seen, and Sheriff Smith may feel pleased with the work.

THE WRITTEN STATEMENT.

Sheriff Smith may feel pleased with the work.

THE WRITTEN STATEMENT.

The written statement Hawes has made is supposed to be in the hands of Mr. Rhodes, of the Birmingham News, who will print it. It was written by Hawes, and was given to Colonel Taliaferro, his attorney, by whom it was today surrendered, by Hawes's directions, to some one to be printed in book form. The proceeds of the sales are to go to his boy. It consists of forty pages of his life and sixteen pages of the crime. Colonel Taliaferro has read it, and says that it is the same story he told on the stand on February 18th last, the only difference being in reference to May. Of her he says he brought her to town and turned her over to the party named in the statement, and that that party carried her to the lake, and put her out of the way. The statement asserts that all were put to death by drowning.

WHAT IS IN A DAY?

Saturday, the last day of the week, has figured conspicuously in the life of Diok Hawes. He was born on Saturday, was married to Emma Pettis on Saturday. He discovered evidence of his wife's infidelity on Saturday. Their bod is were found on Saturday. The pail riot occurred on Saturday. He was sentenced to be hanged on Saturday. The opinion of the supreme court affirming the decision in the case was written on Saturday, and on Saturday his body will be buried.

"I wish you would correct the infamous."

John Wyly Talks. "I wish you would correct the infamous falsehood contained in the evening Journal about me this afternoon," said John Wyly last night, as he handed in the following clipping:

A Journal reporter called at the railroad vards and inquired for Wyly, where he was told that Wyly no longer worked for the Central. The reporter then visited Wyly's residence at 98 E. Ellis street. Mrs. Wyly stated that her husband was out of the city, she thought, but that she did not know where he was for certain.

Mr. Wyly then continued:

"The headline is a lie. Law in Atlanta."

"The headline is a lie. I am in Atlants.
"The second inference that I 'no longer worked for the Central'—meaning, evidently, that I had skipped out—is false in the impression it makes.

"The third lie is the statement I lived at 98 East Ellis street. I live instead at 288 White-"The statement that my wife said I was 'out of the city, is also a lie.

"Now for the facts, which the Journal does not seem to be able to get. I am a conductor on the Western railway, of Alabama. I came iu on my train at 1:30 this morning; went home, and to bed, where I stayed until noon. I would have gone out again this evening, but the worriment caused my wife by the persistence of the Journal in misrepresenting me, made her Ill, and I remained with her. I will go out on my run

"It is hard enough to have a convicted murderer trying to shove off his unholy crime on me; but I cannot see why a reputable journal should seek, by intimating my uncertain whereabouts, to create the impression that I was hiding out. It is a cold-blooded crime. I am a poor man, and should have the same justice as a rich way." justice as a rich man."

THE SECRET OF HAWES'S ENMITY.

THE SECRET OF HAWES'S ENMITY.

Mr. Wyly was then asked why it was thatHawes should have followed him so.

"The reason is very plain," he said. "If it had not been for me Hawes would today have been a free man. When I was in jail an escape was planned. Hawes tried to get me into

it. As my release was certain, and assent to a jail escape would have been criminal, I refused. This brought upon me the implacable hatred of Hawes, who made up his mind that I should suffer.
"Why, one of the strongest proofs that Hawes was lying when he charged me with the offense, lies in this circumstance. When Hawes became convinced that the end was certain and that no hope remained for him, he ent for Father Daly. Of course, the first thing the priest insists upon is full confession. As he visited the prisoner frequently, and the two seemed to be in accord, it is fair to pretwo seemed to be in accord, it is fair to pre-sume that such confession was made. After this Hawes made the statement that I was implicated, the priest quithin. Why? If the priest was at liberty to tell the secrets of the confessional, it would be that he knew Hawes was lying wilfully when he brought my name into the case, and knowing that, and that his penitent was incorrigible, he quit him. I am innocent, and intend to remain right here."

THE GREAT FLOODS Which are Filling Rivers and Creeks Around

Chattanooga.
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., February 28.—[Spec ial.]—The Tennessee river at this point is rag-ing, and grave fears are entertained that the fleed will exceed that of 1885, when the height of the river reached fifty-two feet, the danger line. Thirty-three feet was passed last night and indications from the present rise of the river are that it will be ten feet above danger by 6 c'clock tomorrow morning. A portion of the fifth ward is submerged, and in some locations frame houses have been floated from their foundations by the tide. Hundreds of drays were kept busy today moving furniture and household goods from the lower districts of the city. Saint Elmo and East End are cut off from the city by back water. Chicamaugua and Chattanooga creeks, which fairly surround the city, are out of their banks and really cause the greater part of the overflow in the city. The Alabama Great Southern trains are abandoned, the track being washed away at Riceville, Ala., for a distance of several hundred yards. The track being washed away at Riceville, Ala, for a distance of several hundred yards. The Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus tracks are two feet under water at East End, and all travel on that line is obstructed. Railroad men state that all trains entering the city will probably have to be abandoned before Sunday. The Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain Railway company abandoned all trains between the city and the mountain today, the tracks at some places being several feet under water. The Union Railway company have abandoned one division of the belt systemand announce that they will abandon all trains tomorrow. Two large taestles on the belt-line are submerged in the back-water, but are held in place by car loads of stone placed as a weight on the trestles. Last night and today thousands of logs came down the river, having broken loose in the Tennessee' tributaries above here. A large number of the logs were caught below this city. The chamber of commerce at a meeting last night, appointed two expert engineers to take the gauge of the river above and below the suck, which is about eight miles below here. This will show whether or not the obstructions at the suck cause the overflow. If so, the government will be asked to remove the obstructions.

AS SEEN FROM THE CLIFFS. The Rush of the Wild Waters Down Arizona

Gulches. PRESCOTT, Arizona, February 28.-A miner returned yesterday afternoon from Walnut Grove dam. He interviewed Captain Hunt of the United States army, who was on the watch with Superintendent Rrown when the dam gave way. Captain Hunt says that all day Friday wenty men, being all that could be secured, were employed in blasting a wastewater way to increase its capacity. The sign of the break was the snapping of a large steel cable, connecting the tower in the middle of the dam with the bank. This occasioned a loud report, and he said it seemed as if a ball of fire was shot from it. The next instant the tower tottered, and it seemed as if the of fire was shot from it. The next instant the tower tottered, and it seemed as if the entire dam, containing 90,000 tons of rock, all moved bodily at once. The roar of the waters and the grinding of boulders was perfectly deatening.

The messenger sent to warn those at the lower dam, and who failed to do so on account of becoming intoxicated, has not been seen since. The first survivors to arrive in Prescott was yesteraky afternoon, when John Hardee, Ed Davis and W. M. Russell came in, all of them being more or less bruised and skinned from climbing steep hills among cactus and sharp rocks to escape the flood. John Hardee gave his experience, as follows:

"I was camped on the creek with three others. Some to a deafening roar, when I jumped out do bed and yelled at the others: The dam has broken! Run for your lives!' I reached high ground and saw waves at least sixty feet high, strike the tent and it was gone. The distance between the bluffs at this point is about two hundred yards, and the water filled this space forty feet deep. A huge boulder weighing 100 tons in front of our tent was swept away and the next day I went down the cut five miles in search of bodies and saw no trace of it. Some lumber has been left on a high bluff near the tower dam which was not reached by the water. Coffins are being made of this and then floated down stream to where bodies are found, the latter being buried where found. Thirty-seven bodies in all have been recovered."

The Storm Passes Through Talladega.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., February 28.—[Special.]
A special from Talladega, Ala., gives an account of a most terrible storm which passed through that place this morning. It made a path about one hundred yards wide, and death and destruction marked its e ire course. Fortunately it did not pass through a thickly populated part of the town, but the scene along its pathway beggars description. Houses were blown down, and the boards, and even the beams and rafters carried a considerable distance. Trees were snapped off like pipe stems or torn from the ground by the roots. Cows, horses and other domestic animals were killed, and a number of people living in the houses blown down were seriously injured, but none fatally. The storm was in line with Chramer Trellis and old Estille homestead, both well-known residences.

Ruined by a Cyclone.

New Orleans, February 28.—A Picayune's Kosciusko, Miss., special reports the destruction of Carthage yesterday by a cyclone. The courthouse was struck and roofing carried away. Residences were demolished, including that of G, P. Brennan. The Brennan family—husband, wife and four children—were buried in the debris. All were severely wounded, one of the children having since died of its unjuries.

WESTERN LARD MEN

TRYING TO THROTTLE THE CONTON SEED OIL INTEREST.

ATLANTA'S PROTEST IN CONGRESS.

The Farmers of the West, as Well as the Lard Men, United Against the South-ern Oil Product.

Washington, February 28 .- [Special.]-

Judge Stewart was before the committee on commerce today, with a petition from the Atlanta chamber of commerce, protesting against the passage of the compound lard bill. This bill places a heavy tax on all lards or compounds, except that made solely of hog WILL INJURE COTTON SEED OIL.

If passed, it will result in practically stamping out cotton seed lard, or mixtures of the same with hog lard, and necessarily this will decrease the value of raw cotton seed, and thereby injure the farmer. Judge Stewart says the Farmers' Alliance of the south will oppose the bill. On the other han? Mr. Hatch, of the committee, is vigorously pushing the bill, and stated today that the farmers of Virginia and the west favor it. IT IS LIKELY TO PASS.

It looks now like the bill is going to paas, as thas the large western lard packers and farmers behind it. Its passage will, however, hurt the southern farmers materially, and they should at once send petitions and delegations if possible, here to protest. It is a very serious question with them, as with the western hog raisers, who are now doing everything possible to pass the bill.

THE SHOOTING SENSATION.

There was a shooting scrape under the dome of the capitol at 10 o'clock today. Ex-Representative Taulbee, of Kentucky, was shot by Charles E. Kincaid, correspondent of the Louisville Times. It is the first time such an affair has ever occurred in the capitol. The shooting took place at the foot of the stairs in the corridor just beneath the house of representatives. Taulbee, it seems, was possessed of that Kentucky mania of pulling men's ears, which was first so effectually accomplished upon little Billy Chandler by Senator Blackburn last year. Taulbee today pulled Kincaid's ear, and got a bullet in return. The affair was, however, the result of an old feud. About two years ago Kincaid printed in his paper the story of a scandal at the patent office, in which Mr. Taulbee had figured. The story was that Taulbea had had a pretty young girl appointed to a clerkship in the patent office, and that on one of his visits there a watchman had caught him kissing the girl behind one of the cases. The story was in all the papers at the time, but Taulbee took In at the papers at the time, our rathee cook exception at its publication in his home paper. Indeed, it was said to have been the cause of his wife securing a divorce from him.

THE ROW TAKES PLACE.

Mr. Talbee denounced Kincaid for printing the story, and struck him and cuffed him around considerably. Kincaid, however, not being a fighter, made no resistance. The two men had not been thrown together from that men had not been thrown together from that time until today. When they met at noon today in the capitol, Taulbee told Kincaid he wanted to speak with him. Kincaid replied, "I am waiting here for a gentleman." For this Taulbee slapped him, and then caught him by the ear and wrenched that organ vigorously. Kincaid did not strike back, but said:
"I am not armed or you would not treat me this way." "Then you had best arm yourself," replied

Taulbee, as he walked off.

About an hour later Mr. Taulbee was walkand the four later are. Fainless was wakeing down the steps leading to the house restaurant in company with Ex-Doorkeeper Sam Donelson. Kincaid rushed down behind the two men, and just as Taulbee reached the bottom step Kincaid tapped him on the shoul-THE PISTOL FIRED. Taulbee turned, and as he did so Kincaid shoved a pistol in his face and fired. The ball entered just below the left ere and lodged somewhere about the ear. Taulbee put his hand to his face to stop the blood and walked to a committee room leaning on Mr. Donelson's arm. Kincaid gave himself up to the capito policeman who was standing a few feet off. Kincaid says Taulbee called him a liar on the steps before he shot. Taulbee says he did not know who shot him, and did not know Kincaid was near until Donelson told him as he led him to the committee room. It was thought at first that Taulbee was fatally wounded, but physicians say he will recover.

There is a very marked difference of opinion among the members and newspaper men over the affair. Many members say it was an at-tempt at murder, pure and simple, for the shooting was premiditated. Others think Taulbee might have been somewhat overbear-ing. The newspaper men think Kincaid went rather far in using a pistol as he did. They think he should have used a heavy cane. However, they think that he should have defended himself with some kind of weapon, for Taulbee is a very large man, something over six feet in height, while Kincaid is a little fellow, not more than five feet four of five inches high, and will not weigh 125 pounds. Owing to the causes which led to the shooting, and to the outside parties who would be brought into a trial in court, the impression prevails that if Taulbee recovers there will be no prosecution. Kincaid will perhaps be bonded out tomorrow. AN INVITATION TO SENATOR DANIEL.

Senator Colquitt and Judge Stewart today received a letter from Captain John Milledge, of the Confederate Veterans association of Atlanta, enclosing an invitation to Senator Daniel, of Virginia, to deliver an address in Atlanta on April 26th. Senator Daniel was not at the senate today, and did not receive the invitation. However, Senator Colquitt has no doubt but that he will accept.

At Judge Stewart's request, a postoffice will be established at or near Colonel Livingston's home in Newton county. It will be called Cora. Another postoffice in the same county, will have its name changed from "Sundown." However, no significance seems to be intended.

ME. RANDALL'S CONDITION.

I had a talk with Mr. Randall's private sec I had a talk with Mr. Randall's private secretary this morning. He had just left the house where Mr. Randall had been busy with him as hour or more, attending to his correspondence and other business. Mr. Randall wrote two letters himself. He was sitting up and said he felt better than for months. Indeed his secretary says his physicians now say his complete recovery is possible, although it may be very slow. He is yet in a very weak condition, however, and his intimate frinds think he is doing rather too much work to insure a rapid recovery. Mr. Randall reads all the newspapers. He has read an account of his death a dozen times. These stories annoy him somewhat, but he says he feels very certain of recovering his health sufficiently to be in the house during the next session. To his great strength of will is undoubtedly due his improvement. Those who know him best think it probable he will be alive for some years yet. E. W. B.

CAPITALISTS BROUGHT TOGETHER.

John H. Inman Seems to Have Won the Fight. Nashville, Tenn., February 28.—[Special.] Rumors and counter rumors flew thick and fast about the street this morning. The report most frequently heard was that John H. Inman had bought a controlling interest in the Tennessee Coal, and that a compromise between the Inman crowd and the Duncan-Platt party had been effected. It seems that some days ago letters were received in Nashville saying that Mr. Duncan had been cornered by parties supposed to be representatives of Mr. Inman, and forced to sell 1,600 shares of the Tennessee Coal stock. Telegrams were sent Mr. Duncan, and in reply he said that no sales had been made of his stock, but rumors kept coming, however, to the effect said that no sales had been made of his stock, but rumors kept coming, however, to the effect that he had been betrayed by Mr. Platt, and in response to some urgent telegrams, it is said on the streets, that Mr. Duncan replied that the dif-ferences between the present management and other people had been amically adjusted, and that hereafter he (Mr. Düncan) and his friends must act in harmony with them.

PASSING UP PENSIONS.

The House Passes the Urgent Deficiency

Washington, February 28.—After the reading of the journal, Mr. Henderson, of lowa, moved that the house go into committee of the whole on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, the vote resulting 98 to 21.

Mr. Bland. of Missouri, raised the point of no quorum.

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, raised the point of no quorum.
The speaker could count but 155 members present, and a call of the house was ordered.
Two hundred and thirty-eight members responded to their names, and then Mr. Francerson's motion was agreed to.

After three hours and a half consumed in the discussion of points of order, the committee rose and the bill was passed. It appropriates $23,630,000—the largest item being an appropriation of $21,600,700 for the payment of pensioners of the war of 1812 and the Mexican war.

The remainder of the afternoon was devoted The remainder of the alternoon was devoted to the consideration of the private calendar, but no bills were passed, and at 5 o'clock the house took a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension bills.

FAVORS A CHANGE.

The Marquis of Hartington's Report on the liny and Navy.

London, to link 27.—The report of the marquis of Harting in's commission on the army and navy will appear next week. It is severe on the war office system, which it finds to be extravagant, cumbrous and inefficient; dwells with emphasis upon the fact that the responsibility of all heads of bureaus is only naminal; and it proposes to abelish the position of commander-in-chief now held by the duke of Cambridge, to substitute a military chief of staff, to be assisted by an advisory board, to whom all heads of departments shall be directly responsible. It advises that the power of granting warrants be invested in parliament. It declares that the navy is well organized and admirably managed.

Notice of his intended absence was received from the vice-president, and Mr. Ingalls was lected were identified. elected president of the senate pro tem. HE PRODUCES A LETTER.

Mr. Blair said that he had received this morning a letter (one of many such), complaining that the Associated Press and newspapers of the country failed to give such reports Important matters of debate in the senate as important matters of debate in the senate as would properly inform the people touching affairs in progress. He read the letter in question, which came from Pittsburg, asking him to forward his address on the educational bill, and stating that there were hundreds of thousands of people who would be glad to read the debate, but who had no means of knowing what had been said. This, said Mr. Blair, is here. what had been said. This, said Mr. Blair, is but a specimen of the general complaint throughout the country, that the press, to which the senate furnishes privileges, and that the Associated Press, whose reporter has the privilege of the floor, fails in the discharge of their important duty in connection with legislation. I have had occasion to advert to this in relation to a matter which I and others had collected with matter which I and others had collected with great effort, as bearing on the merits of an important maiter known as the educational bill; and I was so unfortunate or fortunate (as the case may be) to receive a pretty liberal news-paper cudgelling in consequence of so doing. But I have not observed that the press has taken any interest in the circulation of the rtant matter known as the educational bill facts. The press has constantly intimated that the reason of its alleged delinquency in not publishing such important matter, rather than the reports of prize fights and dog fights, is that my speech was not entertaining.

SAYS THE PRESS IS MUZZLED.

"I do per ask the publication of the speech but of the facts bearing on the merits of the them generally throughout the country, although I have spent many thousands of dollars in so doing; and this would have been unnecessary, had the press not heen (as I believe) muzzled and intimidated, and false to its trust in that regard. I have been told by a responsible newspaper man that the Associated Press representative or this floor, does not transmit sible newspaper man that the Associated Fress representative on this floor does not transmit and has not transmitted, to the press generally, any (or scarcely any) of the facts which day after day, have been placed before the senate, and which should have gone before the senate, in order to affect its indepent in repeople in order to affect its judgment in regard to this great question. On the contrary the papers have been filled with falsehoods and lies, and misrepresentations of a grave charactea, bearing on the merits of the question. That cannot be an accident. That cannot be excusable. The press which is our only medium of intercourse with the people, owes it to the people to dissemminate the information which is brought forward here. It does not do so. Of that I complain, and I produce this letter which I could follow up with many others to show that the press fails in answering the wants of the American public in that regard.

WASHINGTON, February 28 .- Another hearmittee on agriculture to persons interested in legislation proposed to regulate the manufac-fure of lard and lard compounds, and to place the latter under control of the internal revenue bureau. This, the committee had pre viously decided, was to be the last hearing, each to have half an hour in which to close.

JUDGE STEWART PRESENT. Representative Sewart, of Georgia, pre sented to the committee a resolution of chamber of commerce of Atlanta, protesting against the proposed legislation; also from W. E. A. Sessions, an officer in the Farmers' Alliance of Georgia; also president of one of the cotton seed oil mills near At-of one of the cotton seed oil mills near Arlanta and a large cotton planter, stating that the alliance is opposed to legislation as far as Georgia is concerned.

Mr. Stewart said the alliance is opposed to this legislation. It is inquisitorial and vexatious and very odious to the people. The proceeds of the sale of cotton seed enables the planter to gether and market his crop and to ceeds of the sale of cotton seed enables the planter to gather and market his crop and to pay for the fertilizers he uses. There is no moral or legal necessity for legislatation. In eleven southern states there are strong penal statutes against the manufacture and sale of adulterated foods, which are injurious to health. If lead, compound are injurious to health. If lard compound comes within this proscription, there is no lack of law now to punish the offenders. In answer to members of the committee, Mr. Stewart said there was no farmers' organization in Georgia except the alliance, and they are the believes proceedily meaninously. he believes, practically, unanimously ed to the bill.

opposed to the bill.

In conclusion, Mr. Stewart said that congress could not control these matters of competition in trade, and if it were to enter upon the subject it should take cognizance of all adulterations or compounds. Afterwards Mr. Stewart coucluded his statement concerning the farmers' openization, saying there was a the farmers' organization, saying there was a grange of the Patrons of Husbandry in his

Kimball and Wellburn, advocates of legislation, that the price of cotton seed oil was controlled by a trust, and therefore the farmers approved legislation.

Mr. Curtis stated that there was not the slightest foundation for these statements. In no article of commerce is there greater competition that in cotton seed oil. So violent is that competition that last year the price of cotton seed yaried from $8 to $16 a ton in different parts of the country.

Oliver of Chicago, stated that Fairbanks & Co. had manufactured cottosene (a compound of beef fat and cotton seed oil) three or four years. It sells for a fraction of a cent less (at wholesale than the lard compound. It does not look like lard and cannot be mistaken for it.

WANT THE LABEL RESTORED. Alexander Weaderburn, representing the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry of Virginia, read a statement in which he asserted that the manufacturers of lard compound had changed the labels on their products within the past two years in deference to public opinion and not voluntarily, therefore they should be compelled by law to continue to brand their products for what they are. Without such legislation there can be absolutely no protection to the public against the frauds of unscrupulous men who may engage in the business of manufacturing compounds and adulterations and putting them on pounds and adulterations and putting them on the market for a pure article. Mr. Weder-burn argued that notwithstanding the asser-tions of Representative Stewart, the proposed legislation is really for the benefit of the cotton seed producers of the south. In conclusion, Mr. Wederburn, in refuting the statements of counsel for the opposition that there was no public sentiment demanding the passage of the proposed legislation, presented resolutions of the state granges of numerous states in favor roposed legislation, presented resolutions of the state granges of numerous states in favor of the passage of the bill.

HONEST LARD DEMANDED. Colonel Brigham, master of the National Grange Patrons of Husbandry, addressed the committee briefly. He said the farmers be-lieve they have suffered from the sale of adulerated and impure articles as honest lard, and they want to be protected by a law that will require the manufacturers of these articles to brand and sell them for just what they are.

Messrs. Rowland and Stewart, of the Pennsylvania state grange, presented resolutions of that body, asking congress to pass such a law or laws a new presenter to the people. or laws as are necessary to secure to the people of this country pure food. The Military Department of the University Lacks Proper Accourrements.

Athens, Ga., February 28.—[Special.]—Recently the military system at the university has been revived, and now the students are required to drill regularly under the command of Colonel Charles M. Snelling. Since he has had charge of the military department of the university, great improvement has been made, and a wonderful amount of good has resulted therefrom. But the lack of proper accourrements has ever been a force at work which retards progress, and without these the great good which would otherwise result from this system, will fail. The companies now drill with old muskets which will hardly hold together, and these are not present in any great number. This at oncodeprives them of entering contests of any kind, and limits their usefulness in case of any emergency. Last term they wanted to enter a prize drill, and had to borrow a few guns from another company. They have recently received invitations to enter a company at exhibitions and encampments, and not having the necessary accourrements have been unable to accept.

The companies are excellent ones, and in Colonel Snelling and Captains Willcoxen, Mynatt, Sanford and Arkwright have an able set of commanders. It is the opinion of one and all that if the military system of the university is to be carried to that high degree of prosperity it merits, it will be necessary for the state to furnish the companies with guns.

All the organized bodies and citizens will meet him and march to the Armstrong, where the ladies and others will await to greet him to express their appreciation of his manly and eloquent speech before the Southern so-ciety. An address of welcome will be delivered by the Hon. Seaborn Wright, and the citizenr will be given an opportunity of shaking his hand and congratulationg him. He was expected tonight, but the trains were delayed, and he will arrive on Saturday night.

A LARGE PURCHASE.

Wealthy Macon Merchant Purchases the Famous Brown House.

Famous Brown House.

Macon, Ga., February 28.—[Special.]—Governor Lounsberry, of Connecticut, has owned the famous Brown house quite a number of years. About ten days ago, Mr. M. Nussbaun, the wealthy wholesale dry goods merchant, went to New York, but only one or two in Macon knew the object of his visit. It transpired today. This morning a telegram was received in Macon from Mr. Nussbaum at New York, stating that he had bought the Brown house and all of its furniture. It is not known here what price Mr. Nussbaum paid, but it is supposed to be in the neighborhood of fifty thousand dollars. It is presumed that Mr. Nussbaum bought it as an individual investment, though it is reported that he is only one of a syndicate. In reading it, the reader must remember that Mr. Thirlkeld admitted to an editor of The Constitution that he made departures from this written sermon, and that these de-partures were listened to by reliable reporters: Gammon Theological Seminayy.

ments for the uplift of men and the helping the people in the peaceful solution of grave problems—his record of service, however humble, should count for something, and not be thrown away as "skim milk."

Allow me to say that I am grateful for the past kindnesses shown me in my work. But whatever treatment I may receive, I am here to stay. I did not choose this field for myself. I came at the call of Christ and the church. I am here for life. This is my country. Here is planted my home. Here my children were born. Here all my interests exentre. After a long life of hard labor (for which I pray God to spare me) in the uplift of a despised race, for whose redemption my Master has called me to labor, I have expressed the wish to be buried here on the field of my life's work. Over my ashes I ask no other monument than the gratitude of a race whom I shall have helped to redeem into manhood and womanhood in Christ Jesus.

shall have helped to redeem into manhood and womanhood in Christ Jesus. Iknow what it is to be misunderstood and to be east out because of my work. I do not complain. I am still content to labor on for both races, whose destinies are strangely bound together. If, because of my peculiar field of labor, I am called to stand apart with the despised race, many of whose hearts ache and bleed because of the inhumanity of man, I shall take my lot cheerfully and labor on "for Christ's name and for His sake."

Other inviting fields have opened to me. But I shall remain here where I can do more good as a man of peace.

Christ." Above all, I shall be true to duty and to humanity, and shall walk that path, however narrow and lonely it may be.

To snow that my work has not been entirely of the churacter implied in the editorial referred to, I beg leave to refer to the issue of April 27, 1880, where The Constitutions is pleased to say: "Mr. Thirkield is doing a great work in the south, and is receiving invitations-to preach and lecture all over the country. He is a favorite with our people. He has preached in all the leading pulpits of this city, without reference to denomination, and is approciated and loved by them all. He has been among us about six years. and has now a name and a place that might be considered a fit recompense for the work of a lifetime."

Governor Gordon was present at the commencement exercises at Gammon Theological Seminary, last May. Two of the speakers treated vigorously the race problem—and yet at the close the governor referred in terms of prise, not only to the ability and logical acumen of the speakers, but also to the broad and tolerant spirit shown by these young ministers in their treatment of a grave theme. They feel that changes must come in the treatment of their race, but they want to see them come in peace.

The address at Chicago was before a body of

of their race, but they want to see them come in peace.

The address at Chicago was before a body of Christian ministers. The motive was not to stir up strife, but to so present the facts as to the condition of certain sections of the south, that they might be led to stir up the churches to give money and ministers; and teachers for missionary work. I state facts as I see and know them. Many people, north and south, are ignorant as to the real condition of large sections of our common country, which are in a state of practical barbarism today. When Dr. Horace Bushnell, the leading Congregational minister of his day, painted ism today. When Dr. Horace Bushnell, the leading Congregational nuinister of his day, painted the condition of the opening west in dark and dreadful colors, though it seemed hard on the west, it was true to the facts. Though he spoke in general terms, only fools or partisans would charge him with including in this picture cities like Chicago, where general law and order prevailed. Other large sections like California and Kansas were, however, on the verge of barbarism.

In my paper I was careful to specify, even to unecessary repetition, "dense, dark sections," great territories," and "certain portions" of the south.

South.

Some facts given may be new and startling. I appeal not to theories but to facts. If my conclusions are doubted, I ask you to examine into the facts. My position and peculiar work put me in possession of many facts not generally known. The sooner they are known and squarely faced, the better it will be for both races. There are some sections of 'Georgia just as much in need of missionary work as the heart of Africa or China.

The north has been are to the same and the south and the same and the same are some sections.

in need of missionary work as the heart of Africa or China.

The north has her problems that ministers set forth in dark colors. The infamies of the lumber argions of Michigan have been held up, in order to urge the church to come to the rescue of men and women from their lost condition. No one would attack such revelations as sectional. On the same spirit of love for our common humanity of both races, I made my appeal for the south. If my argument is not based on facts it will not stand. If the facts are as presenced, let us face them, and go to work for the righting of the wrongs and the saving of souls of our brothers for whom Christ died. Yours respectfully, wilber P. Thirkield.

ing sinong the rank and file of the colored minister in some churches cannot be painted in colors too dark. Often religion is kept alive by outtrusts of animal feeling and fanatical zeal and superstition. Belief in necromancy visions, signs is common.

The control order can be expected in communities too civil order can be expected in communities too civil order can be expected in communities to civil order can be expected in communities control of the negroes from the more civilized communities to the black belt has now set in. Train loads of a thousand a day passing through Atlanta is no uncommon sight. I have just ridden through the vast, unsettled wilderness of Mississippi and Louisiana into which these masses are being dunged. Here they are left alone, withdrawn from the restraints and upilifits of civitized life. With low ideas of home and family ties; with only the rudest excuse for schools; with an ignorant, and, often, an immoral ministry; with the bible sealed; with a Christiess worship that hasses for religion—what is to save these masses from a relapse into barbarism? Even now certain parts of the south are sunk almost to the level of the heart of Africa. In the very center of New Orleans, even, a barbaric incident occurred last May, a synopsis of which I give, taken, in substance, from the editorial columns of The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION of May 31, 1889. The attention of the police having been called to a, house on St. Anthony street, it was raided. They were paralyzed to find Alexander, a negro voudoo doctor, in the center of a group of fifteen white and ten colored women, all in worse than, decolete condition as to dress. Ho was shouting a voudoo incantation. Taken to the police court, some of them were found to be from respectable families. Because of various adments they had come under the wilderness. With this dense ignorance of the races; with a low order of social life; with licentiousness eating out the very heart of home and family life; with civil lawlessness and crime so common; with religi numanty and the citizens of a common reputite must come to the rescue and redemption of the south.

Dr. Bushnell bears high and grateful tribute to our early Methodist preachers who followed the trail of emigration along paths blazed through the wilderness. Methodism did more to save the great west from barbarism than probably any other one religious force. By her very organization and polity this same Methodist Episcopal church is fitted to occupy this opportunity in our southland. The soght is to be redeemed: regeneration is to come through which divine forces may flow for the regeneration of men and their redemption from barbarism and sin, can equal an educated Christian ministry. I therefore hold this up to view as the suprememission of the Freemen's Aid and Southern's Educational society, whose anniversary we this day celebrate. With these facts before us, I invite you to consider several propositions concerning the need of an educated, Christian ministry in our southern work, the subject assigned me for this occasion.

1. An educated Christian ministry is needed to southern work, the subject assigned me for this occasion.

1. An educated Christian ministry is needed to hold the leadership among the people that it now has by inherance. Grave moral and social questions are to the front. The ministry of the south must face them. And allow me to say that among these ministers there are, of both races, men of as entire devotedness and of as lofty consecration as I have ever known. Let no utterance of mine cast a single redection on the apostolic men now in the field.

a single reflection on the apostolic men now in the field.

In social upheavals and reformations, in the righting of the wrongs of the masses, how often has history witnessed an infidel leadership assuming control and direction. Observe Tom Paine and French infidelity in the American revolution. The reforms now needed, and that through an aggressive and alert ministry may come in peace, a must find origin in the gospel, but in a gospel interpreted and enforced by educated, Cathlic brain, reaching not the few, but the masses of both races. History teaches that if the ministry does not grasp its natural right of leadership, infidelity will take up the ideas of reform, vitalized as they are by Christian truth, and lead the clergy in the enforcement of their bearings on social and raciel questions. The educated Christian ministry in this city (Chicago) has been the aggressive, yet conservative force that, in past crises, has saved the masses from revolution and anarchy. The church from its Christian schools in the same spirit of lowe for our common his same spirit of lower for our common his south. If my argument is not based on facts it will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand. If the facts are as presensed, will not stand the facts of t tions to keep the people interested, have first been deserted by the people and then have deserted themselves."

This problem of the races—not the negro problem—must be solved on the ground, and largely by a native ministry. Let politicians fulminate; they may clear the atmosphere somewhat; let theorists solve the question on paper; let doctrinaries vapor on; but this is a question that is to be settled on the ground by ministers and teachers in hand to hand and heart to heart contact with the people. It is not a ninety days skirmish, as wise men prophesied of the war, but a ninety years' battle against forces that tend to barbarism. The poor and degraded whites' and blacks are to be redeemed. But the forces of redemption, in men and money, must come largely from the north. A conscience as to the negromust be created in the south. With many the question is/ not what shall we do for the negro, but what shall we do with the negro. As he rises into power this question more and more harasses me. The theory of repression and separation as a plan of action unfits men for effective religious work among the colored people. What of the futre?

In sight and touch of all the barbarism of the past and present in the south, I do not despair; because I believe in Christ and the church as mighty for the redemption of all men. There are thousands there who loved Him, and the common humanity He died to redeem. The gospel is more and more to be preached by a ministry emancipated from the thrail of thought and false ideas of humanity, inherited from slavery. Through the power of a Christian ministry, love is to push out hatred. Light is to shine away darkness into its caverns. The day of bumanity, full-orbed and glorious, is to come. And when the fullness of light and victory shall come, this society is to stand forth before a grateful people, as one of the mightiest factors in the redemption of the races, and the rescue of the republic from barbarism.

From the almost entire separation of the races in church and more with the ne phere been so charged with the forces that may break forthin a tempest of strife and revolution as now.

In the face of this growing separation and antagonism between the races, the question arises: What is to be the outcome? It may be taken as an axiom that two races cannot grow up together side by side, utterly dissimilar in their social, political, moral and religious life and institutions, and remain at peace; the clash will sometime come. Is there any force, then, that can draw the races together in relations of respect and confidence? It is clear that there is no hope in polities. The old party of humanity has now become a heartless machine. Moral reform movements have not availed. The only hope left is in the church working through her Christian schools and through her ministry. Under the cross of Christ a union of races that may save this southland from racial disruption and civil revolution seems alone possible.

In this work the Methodist Episcopal church has a providential opportunity to mediate between the races, and to draw them into mutual recognition and sympathy. Here is our church covering this entire territory with schools and churches, and with a membership of half a million almost equally divided between the colored and white people, which is true of no other church organization. Here is a church for a century standing for lofty principles of humanity; that has held the confidence of the negro to a large degree; that in its plan of organization and supportunity in the church has a great system of schools and two theological seminaries in the ceuters of the white and colored population; and with a theory—of church life that makes membership in any church or conference equivalent to membership in the whole body. With this unity of organization and equipment the church has an opportunity given it of providence to cultivate fraternity, and to furnish to the south an example of recognition and intercommunion between the races.

Hysterical Statesmen.

Louis Kossuth is the most famous patriot and the purest enthusiast of the century. At the age of eighty-six this remarkable man scorns charity and earns his living as a writer for the press. He is still as bright and interesting in conversation as he was when he visited this country more than a generation ago. His recent talk with a special correspondent of the New York Herald expressed the most absolute confidence in the rapid spread of republicanism in Europe. But the old revolutionist deals now, as in his youth, with glittering generalities. He is weak when he descends to details, and visionary when he discusses plans and methods

The Herald is not far wrong when it puts Kossuth down as a hysterical statesman-a member of the fraternity whose soldier was Garibaldi, whose poet was Hugo, whose historian was Louis Blanc, and whose orator was Wendell Phillips. If we lived in a "Midsummer Night's Dream" existence, says our contemporary, such men might be our reformers, rulers and lawmakers, but in this cold matter of fact world they are only a part of the passing show, and their dreams come to nothing. The real reformers and rulers of the world are practical men-men of blood and iron, selfish, business-like and long-headed. They are at work while others are dreaming, and they get there. Undoubtedly this is the correct view. Down here in the south we occasionally suffer from the invasions and eruptions of hysterical statesmen and reformers who attempt with a flood of gush to wipe out the race problem, state lines, and the barriers wisely established by the Almighty. Some of these men, like Kossuth, and others of his class, are sincere and high-minded, but their misdirected work makes them in reality the enemies of society and good government. They bring with them not peace, but a sword. With the loudest professions of brotherly love on their lips, they stir up strife and bitterness. The best mode of dealing with these innocent apostles of anarchy is assuming the proportions of a problem. Perhaps the good-humored indifference of the public will finally silence

Under the title of "A Forgotten Episode," Mr. George S. Jackson contributes an article to the Atlantic Monthly, which is interesting apart from its conclusions.

Mr. Jackson gives a brief account of the removal of the Cherokees from north Georgia-sometimes called "the spoliation of the es''-and refers to the cruelty of it movement, which was carried out under he authority of Governor Troup and the legislature.

There is no doubt that the removal of the Cherokees, made at the time and in the way it was was an act of humanity that would not be tolerated now. The result of it was the most intolerable suffering, resulting in death and disaster; and yet, it represented the United States. Other tribes have been torn from their homes and practically despoiled of their lands and property to satisfy the greed of the whites, and after awhile we have no doubt that the Indian territory will be taken away from the red men who have settled there.

Mr. Jackson writes his article to put forth a curious theory. He says that Providence always retaliates on those who violate the laws of humanity, and he quotes from Colonel Avery's history of Georgia the account of the desolation and disaster that visited the Cherokee region during the war. It was despoiled by both armies, more than a dozen battles having been fought within its boundaries. According to Mr. Jackson, this happened because the Cherokees had been forcibly removed from their lands.

The trouble about this is, that if there was to be retribution for all the wrongs and outrages of which the Indians are the victims the most popular portions of the union would a desert.

Southern Barbarism.

Mr. Wilbur P. Thirkield, president of Gammon Theological seminary, is of the opinion that THE CONSTITUTION has done him injustice in quoting and commenting on the New York Herald's report of his address before the Freedman's Aid and Southern Education society; and to convince us of that, he sends a communication, together with a copy of the address. As we have no desire to misrepresent. Mr. Thirkiold or to do him injustice, we print both elsewhere.

It is but fair to say, however, in behalf of the Herald's report, which we quoted, and on which our comments were made, that it tallies with the reports made by the Chicago Times and other newspapers of that city. The words attributed to Mr. Thirkield by these newspapers do not appear in the copy of the speech printed elsewhere, and this shows, if it shows anything at all, that a dozen or more reporters entered into a conspiracy to misrepresent him, and it must have been a deliberate one.

The incident would be a most singular one but for the statements made by Mr. Thirkield to one of the editors of THE CONSTITUTION. When asked if he confined himself to his manuscript speech his answer was, "Well, This means, of course, that he did not confine himself to it absolutely, and this fact accounts for the substantial agreement of the newspaper reporters in quoting the sensational language on which we com mented, but which does not appear in his manuscript. Furthermore, Mr. Thirkield remarked to a Constitution writer that he made statements in Chicago that he would not make in Atlanta. Just why there should be such a distinction made we do not Thirkield's position, which seems to be a responsible one, should be careful in what *he says of the people of a community and a section where he declares he has been well

There is but one way to treat the negro question, moral or political, and that way lies in the direction of reason or common sense. It is a very easy matter to create a sensation in Chicago or elsewhere in the north where sectional prejudice has its breeding and feeding grounds. It is a very easy matter—and no doubt the temptation is great to a fresh young orator who desires to magnify his work-to leave an impression that will have a more insidious influence than downright slander. The careful reader will observe in Mr. Thirkield's address many symptoms of exaggeration. There is no more barbarism among the whites of the south today than there is among the whites of the north, and there is less crime of every form and shape-We suppose that Mr. Thirkield understands this as well as anybody, but the temptation to lay the eolors on thick was too great to permit him to institute a comparison between the two sections.

As we have said before, we desire to do Mr. Thirkield no injustice, and we therefore print what he now says he said. We call the attention of the Chicago papers and the New York Herald to the matter. It is in order for these journals to make a proper correc-

Live and Let Live.

The unwise attempt of certain agitators to intagonize different classes and business interests in this country, should not be encouraged by the people. A very old fable tells us how the stomach and the different members of the body once fell out, and determined not to have any thing to do with each other. The head and arms and legs exulted over the fact that the stomach would be unable to get any supplies. and the stomach was equally resolved not to nourish the members.

But after the fight had progressed a little while the stomach found to its surprise that it needed the help of a head and hands and feet, and those members discovered that they were growing weaker and thinner, and in fact could not get along without the stomach. So they made up their differences, and all was well again.

We may learn something from this old story. The producer and the consumer, the farmer and the dweller in the cities, the people who use the railroads, and the railroads that derive their support from the people, all have mutual interests, and their policy should be to live and let live. If one great interest crushes or oppresses another, both will surely suffer. Take the ane case of the people and the railroads. The people have to travel and ship freight. If they hamper and bedevil the railroads so that they cannot make a reasonable profit, and in fact have no rights at all, the railroads will naturally run down; and their poor equipments will, make travel and traffic inconvenient and dangerous. New lines would no longer be built, and the development of the country would receive a serious check. On the other hand, if the railroads become grinding monopolies, disre garding the convenience and the rights of their patrons, they will stir up a hostile sentiment, and unfriendly legislation, and the prejudices of juries in the courts will make their pathway a hard one to travel.

Mutual fairness and justice will be found the best policy for our different classes and interests. It is the only policy that will enable them to live and prosper.

The North in the South.

The southern papers generally approve of the suggestion recently made in these columns to the effect that it would be a good idea to hold a convention of northern residents of the south for the purpose of securing an expression of their views concerning our roblems and our methods of dealing

The Montgomery Journal, however, files its protest. The Journal irritably says that the south wants no certificate of good character from any one or any source.

Now, there is no excuse for this sort of talk. The south for generations has been persistently misrepresented by unfriendly writers and speakers. It is our duty to vin dicate the truth, and the best way to answer misrepresentation, would be to secure a public expression of opinion from our northern citizens who are farming, teaching and manufacturing in our midst. These men who have material interests here would take pleasure in speaking out, and a word from their lips would weigh a ton. Our Alabama contemporary is right in saying that the south needs no certificate of good character, in the ordinary sense of expression. What she does need, however, is o have the facts of her case presented to the world, and the circumstances are such as to make the testimony of the strangers within our gates of peculiar importance and value. We ought to show the outside world that there are thousands of northern men in the south who emphatically repudiate our slan derers and their opinions. Flood Dangers.

For several days and nights the dweller in numerous western and southern river cities and towns have been in a state of sus

The recent heavy rains have come down like the awful deluges precipitated from cloud-bursts. Within a few hours quiet streams and rivers have overflowed their banks, rapidly climbing up the hillsides, and filling the peaceful valleys with the deafening and thunderous roar of their turbulent torrents. The people along the rivers know what all this threatens. They know that they are confronted by a new terror in the shape of the deadly and destructive cloudburst. They know that in a few hours the most innocent looking water course may be turned into a raging sea, and reaching out its swirling waves to drag down cities and towns from the solid foundations once sup-osed to be above the danger line. We shall hear more talk about building new levees and strengthening old ones, but who is to foot the bill? Some of the localities in the greatest peril cannot afford the expense of protective works, and as the rivers are national highways of commerce, the idea that the general government should take the matter in hand would seem to be well founded.

Possibly, when all the states make dicided progress in the work of reforesting these disastrous floods may be modified, but that time is far away, and for generations to come know; but we do know why a person in Mr. the river towns will need artificial safe-

A Wonderful Crep.

It has already been stated in our news columns that Mr. Zachariah J. Drake, of Marlbord county, South Carolina, is the winner of the grand prize offered by the American Agriculturist for the best acre of corn, and also of the prize of $500 offered by the state of South Carolina. The current number of the Agriculturist gives all the facts in the

The acre entered by Mr. Drake was a sandy soil, the original growth of which was oak, hickory and long-leaf pine. Three years ago, before the land was improved, eight dollars an acre was a fair valuation. Thirty years ago the plantation, of which the land was a part, was called by its owner "Starvation's Empire." The acre was a fatr specimen of much of the poor land in the south, and its successful manipulation and improvement afford an instructive lesson, as the Agriculturist well says.

As late as 1885, when the land was in corn, it made a poor crop-practically nothing. In 1886, the acre yielded about 300 pounds of seed cotton, two dollars' worth of immoniated fertilizer being used in the way common to ordinary cotton culture. The fertility was so reduced that, in 1887, the yield of corn was not over five bushels per acre. But now Mr. Drake undeotook to improve it. To provide the vegetable matter or humus so much needed, the land was liberally covered with rakings of leaves. straw, etc., from the neighboring woods. On top of this, twenty-five horse loads of stable manure were evenly spread broadcast; also, seventy-five bushels of cotton seed, 500 ounds of Wilcox, Gibbs & Co.'s manipulated guano, 250 pounds of cotton seed meal and 250 pounds of kainit. This heavy dressing was all plowed under with Starke's Dixie turning plow. It was laid off in rows with the same plow, two furrows to the row, four feet apart; 100 pounds of the guand were applied in the furrows, and then each pair of furrows were thrown into a ridge with the same ploy. The Peterkin cotton was planted with a Leytch cotton planter, and made the great crop of 917 pounds of lint cotton on the acre, showing conclusively the result of the improvement.

Mr. Drake decided that this was the acre for him to enter in the corn contest. The Agriculturist thus describes the preparation:

The last of February he hauled on the contest acre fifty one-horse wagon loads of stable manure averaging thirty bushels to the load, or 1,000 bushels of manure in all, worth $50, to which should b added four dollars for hauling and spreading. This was the droppings of horses and mules, fed on corn and fodder, and was not moved until hauled to the acre. At the same time, 500 point & each of manipulated guano, cotton seed meal, and kainit were also broadcasted, and the whole was then plowed under. Following the plow, whole cotton seed was liberally strewn in each furrow 600 bushels time applied to the acre. A subsoi plew came after, breaking the soil to a total death of twelve inches, and also burying the whole cot-ton seed deeper than the other manure. Thus, the decaying seed should back up the crop later in the season when its roots had penetrated below the first layer of manue. One horse and a man did the plowing, also the subsoiling; both jobs being completed in one day (March 1), at a total expense of two dollars. The acre was harrowed on the same day, with a Thomas smoothing harrow, one man and two horses doing the work in about one hour. The next day-March 2-the acre was laid off, with the Starke plow, in two furrows to the row, followed by the subsoil plow in each row. The rows were alternately three and six feet apart that is, there were six feet between two then three feet, then six feet, and so The latter were five inches deep, but the seed was only covered lightly an inch deep, by raking was only covered nginty at inch ucep, by taking in the sides of the furrow. Rain the next day washed in more soil, and covered the seed deeply. There were good rains March I0 and 15, the plants began to show on the 16th, and by the 25th there was a tolerably good stand. On April 8 the crop was hoed for the first time, thinned to one stalk every five or six inches, and the few missing places replanted. On the 20th the wide spaces (six feet) between the alternate rows were plowed out with the subsoil plow. Then a mixture, composed of 200 pounds each of manipulated guano, kainit, was evenly applied by sowing in each furrow (thus confining this application of plant food to the wide spaces), after which the whole acre was gone over with a Thomas harrow. There was rain or the 24th, and two days later the crop was again 15, the narrow or three-foot rows were plowed out with the subsoiler, and 300 pounds of nitrate of soda was sowed in these rows, and worked in with a hand-harrow or cultivator. On the 25th the Thomas harrow was run through the wide rows to break the crust. It will be seen that by this time the soil was not only well filled with plant food, but had been thoroughly cultivated on the surace, and also well worked underneath by the sub-oil plow, so that the whole soil was not only ful of fertility, but was in that light and open condition that best facilitates root growth.

In June, according to all accounts, the crop was a sight wonderful to behold, and was visited by many people from different parts of the state. It soon became necessary, in order to keep the corn from falling, to put up posts and nail slats to them on both sides of each row. The corn, when pulled, lay knee deep on the ground. Eighty we per cent of the entire crop was kernels and the acre produced 255 bushels of corn, lacking four pounds. There is no land in the west that has ever equalled this.

The conduct of the Madison military com pany in virtually failing to turn out and aid the sheriff of Morgan county in protecting Brown Washington from lynch law has excited Governor Gordon's wrath, and he has ordered a rigid investigation.

Yesterday morning the governor turned all the dispatches relating to the case over to the adjutant-general, including one from the or-derly sergeant of the Madison company, statthat no officers could be con with and only three members, and they with-

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Having been brought into public notice as a candidate for the office of city recorder, soon to become vacant, without having been consulted as to the matter, and lying received assurances of a number of per sonal friends that I have the three democratic and time-honored requisites that should fit a man for public preferment, I desire to say through your paper I would not have this office, or and other, if I have to make "a dicker" (about which much is being said.) I have nothing I could or would offer in the way of bargain and trade. I don't believe the members of the present city council, either as individuals, or in their aggregate capacity, would enter into such a proceeding, and I am equally confident that there are none, elected as they were, who will attempt to revive past issues that have divided and estranged our community, which was productive of "bossism." These things being true, I have approached a few members of council and suggested I would like to have the office. If the council, acting for the public welfare, should place this trust in my hands, I should take it as an honorable one, and if, with the same purpose in view, it should go otherwise I have nothing to say, and remain for law and order.

Herschel V. Johnson's Politics. EDITORS CONSTITUTION: I have read the interview with Ex-Governor Bullock, published on the fifth page of your paper of the 24th. I presume that the ex-governor was a regular reader of the newspapers of the state before the war. I can't conceive how he has fallen into such an egregious error as to the politics of the late lamented Herschel V. Johnson. Governor B. says: "When I came to Georgia, a few years before the ways Herschel V. Johnson was the had been elected (governor) on that platform in 1854. Brown beat him on the democratic platform at the next election.' It is well known by the older men of this day Herschel V. Johnson never older men of this day Herschel V. Johnson never was a whig, and never ran against Brown for governor. Governor J. was always an able and zealous democrat up to the civil war. He was elected governor in 1853, and re-elected-in 1855. His opponent in 1853 was Charles J. Jenkins, whom he beat by about five hundred majority. In 1855, if I am not mistaken, his opponent was Judge Andrews, whom he defeated by a large majority.

He was then probably the youngest man in the senate. It is said that John C. Cahoun, then a senator, entertained an exalted opinion of the talents of the young senator from Georgia. After he left the senate he was elected judge of the superior courts of the circuit in which Milledgeville is sluated. This was previous to his election as governor. To all of these high and honorable positions he was elected as a democrat. In 1850, during the excitement produced by what was then known as the omnibus bill, Governor J. was what was then known as a southern-rights man. In 1850 and 1851, the whig and democratic parties were disrupted in this state for the time, and the parties were then designated as union and southern rights. Governor Johnson was elected to the secession convention of 1861, as an anti-secessionist, and voted in that convention against secession; but when the ordinance of secession was adopted by that convention, he, like a true Georgian, went with his state, though I know he thought at the time it was a great blunder. I was at Milledgeville when the ordinance of secession was adopted, and spent about two hours in Governor Johnson's room at the hotel. I know he was very gloomy over the prospect. In the course of conversation with a few gentlemen present, he ultered an expression which I shall never forget. He said: "I fear that Georgia has today committed the greatest act of folly ever comittered an expression which lorget. He said: "I fear that Geo committed the greatest act of folly ever committed by an enlightened people." Yet it will be remembered that he was twice elected to the confederate senate, where he remained until the collapse. He was elected to the United States senate by the legislature soon after the close of the war, but was refused his seat.

The parents of these children, after reciting these facts, asked the board to pay the salary of a teacher for the school of fifty-four children. The proposition was that the city help in maintaining the school—the parents of the children to bear all expenses but that of the teacher's salary.

The question—because of the large number of pupils out of school—was an important one. If that petition was granted, who could say how many more would be brought up? It was generally conceded that the complaint of these parents was just; that the matter deserved serious consideration; that the children should be given the benefit of public school instruction.

THE HARD LUCK

IN TRYING TO REACH BIRMINGHAM YESTERDAY.

ning Against a Rainstorm Yesterday-A Lively Chapter.

THE CONSTITUTION had a novel experience yesterday in finding itself in a hand to hand tussle with a rain-storm.

This is how it happened. The Atlanta day mail to Birmingham does not reach that city until 8 o'clock in the evening, thanks to the miserably inadequate schedule of the Georgia Pacific railroad. Thus THE CONSTITUTION is not distributed in Birmingham until the morning after publication, an evil which we are doing our best to remedy and which we hope will soon be overcome. We determined that we would not wait for the regular mail to carry yesterday's editon of the paper, containing a history of the crime for which Hawes was to be hung, for, by waiting, the paper would not be accessible to the reading public in Birmingham until the morning after the execution had taken place. So, with five thousand special Constitu-TIONS Mr. Charles Johnson left Atlanta shortly before midnight on a schedule which ceight to have put him in Birmingham at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Bruffey was there with a corps of newsboys, and had not providence interferred, THE CONSTITU-TION would have been distributed throughout Birmingham before breakfast. The train bearing the papers left Atlanta on time only to be stopped before it had reached the city limits by the news that the heavy rains of the day had washed away part of the track and that it would be impossibe for it to proceed. The railroad authorities ordered the schedule to be abandoned and Mr. Johnson found himself before midnight in Atlanta with the Birmingham edition on hand and mingham, at least before night. There was but an instant to make the change. The train was flagged, and almost as quick as it takes to tell it, Mr. Johnson and THE CONSTITUTIONS were on their way to Chattanooga, there to connect with the Alabama Great Southern for Birmingham. Chattanooga was reached about 5 a. m. and Mr. Bruffey was telegraphed that THE CONSTITUTION would arrive in Birmingham by special train over that line.

In the meantime THE CONSTITUTION had telegraphed to Chattanooga for a special engine over the Alabama Great Southern to connect with the Western and Atlantic and rush to Birmingham as soon as possible. The special engine was waiting for the Western and Atlantic in Chattanooga, the connec-tion was made and the paper started to Bir-mingham, when the horrible information came that the Alabama Great Southern had also been washed out and that it would be impossible to connect with Birmingham until the break could be repaired. A large force of hands were then at work and it was hoped that the line would be opened in time to take the regular train, which left Chattanooga at 9 in the morning.

It was impossible, however, to repair the breakage as soon as expected, and it was after midday when The Constitution left Chattanooga for Birmingham.

Everything looked now as if Birmingham would be reached before night. Mr. Johnson telegraphed THE CONSTITUTION that his train was rushing at mad speed toward Birmingham, which he hoped to reach by 5 o'clock. Mr. Bruffey was notified to hold himself in readiness, and again rallying his force proceeded to meet the train.

But the rainstorm got in its work again, and for the third time in a day THE Con-STITUTION was halted before the swollen waters, against which enterprise could not stand, nor over which perseverence could not

At 4:30 o'clock Mr. Johnson telegraphed

"I am again stopped; everything is washed up and I can go no further. Hilburn's and Hawes's casket also here. It is impossible to move; what must I do?"

THE CONSTITUTION wired him to spare no expense to reach Birmingham as soon as possible, only to receive the reply that the weather was "agin" him and that Vander-Birmingham by night.

That settled if, and THE CONSTITUTION was stopped at Attalla, wedged in by swollen waters, and like Moses of old, almost in sight of the promised land, into which it was striving to get.

Of course THE CONSTITUTION can not be expected to down a cyclone and a rain-storm. but it made a desperate struggle yesterday, and if it did not come out on top it was because providence decreed that it should not.

But we had a lively time anyway and enjoyed the excitement, deriving consolation very much after the manner of the pig drover who had driven his swine over many miles of rough road to market. He was of a cheerful disposition and always made the best of everything. Reaching his destination his pigs were stolen and scattered and he was left pigless and moneyless in a strange city. He did not seem annoyed, and a newly formed acquaintance commented:
"I should think you would be distressed over your loss."

"Not at all," said he, "I am glad that I came, anyway.'

"Because," said he, "I had the company of the pigs." We are glad that we made an effort to reach Birmingham for several reasons. First, because it showed what we can do with providence not against us.

Second, it demonstrated our superior facilities for handling and distributing the Third, it makes us more satisfied than ever that for energy, pluck and perseverence THE CONSTITUTION'S young men beat the world. They can down anything but a rainstorm, and they don't give up to that without a struggle, JEPHTHA'S DAUGHTER. The Subject of Rev. Dr. Barrett's Lecture to

The Subject of Rev. Dr. Barrett's Lecture to Children at St. Luke's Yesterday.

Dr. Barrett commenced his talk to the children yesterday afternoon by complimenting them for turning out in such force in spite of the storm. In continuation of his course of lectures fie spoke of Jephtha's daughter, and made her story simple for the little ones. No name had been given to her in the Bible narrative. Her father was what would be termed nowadays a king of cowboys, a sort of border freebooter, brave, true, and who though ignorant, tried to do what was right. The story of his vow was told in a vivid way and the dreadful result marrated—the children evidently deeply interested in it all.

The lesson which Dr. Barrett made them prom-in it all.

The lesson which Dr. Barrett made them promise to carry home and remember at least till next Friday, was "two wrongs don't make a right." When a wrong yow is made it is wrong to keep it. Jephtha's act was that of an ignorant man, who thought, as some people think still, that they can make bargains with God, and that they will do something for Him if He will grant them their regnests. We must do right for its own sake.

CHOPIN-BROWNING.

THE CHARMING RECEPTION AND RECITAL AT MRS. THORNTON'S

Given in Honor of Her Guests, Mrs. Swann and Mrs. Foster—The Literary Club at St. Phillip's.

Mrs. Albert Thornton gave a most delightful Chopin-Browning recital yesterday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. James Swann, of New York, and Mrs. Frank Foster, of Macon. Her beautiful home, elaborately decorated with palms and flowers, and lighted with innumerable candies and fairy lamps, made a most artistic picture, while the very delightful programme given was most thoroughly enjoyed by the guests—about fifty in number.

about fifty in number.

In the little reception room to the right, the mantel of which was banked in potted plants and ferns, with huge epergress of palms placed here and there in the room, Mrs. Thornton, with Mrs. Swann and Mrs. Foster, received the guests. Mrs. Thornton looked superb in a gown of royal blue velvet, with Josephine front of crepe de chine,

Mrs. Swann wore a magnificent costume of white satin, en traine, claborately decorated in Mrs. Foster's costume was a sky blue and silver

Mrs. Foster's costume was a sky blue and silver brocade, and her ornaments diamonds.

The music room was very prettily decorated in palms, ferns and epergnes of Katherine Mermet roses. Near the plano was a tall lamp of dull silver, whose dainty silk shade was covered with the same flower. The dining-room was beautifully trimmed in smilax and rare flowers, and its count is the way served delate. In all its appoint round table was very dainty in all its appointments. As a centerpiece there was an exquisite jar of calla lilies, and all over the table were graceful stands of smilax, with crystal bowls of pansies and violets, here and there. At one end was a hugs jar of American Beauty, roses, whose rich coloring was very beautiful against the delicate

5. Piano Solo-Rhapsodie Hongrois No. 10...Liszt Miss Habr.

While one could hardly make a criticism on so well chosen and perfectly executed a programme, Miss Hahr's brilliant playing won much applause in its perfect comprehension of the subject, and the Rhapsodie Hongrois showed an insight and sympathy with its composer which only a pupil of the great master could give. Mrs. Werner and Mr. Blumenfeld delighted their hearers.

The recitations were very enjoyable, particularly those of Mrs. Peeples, Miss Grant and Miss Crane. Every number of the programme was greatly enjoyed. As souvenirs of this delightful affair, which was one of the events of the season, there were daintily engraved programmes. It is no exaggeration to say that of all affairs in the society world this year none has been more successful, few have been so greatly enjoyed.

In spite of the bad weather, a little band of faithful members held their regular meeting of the Author's club on last evening. The writer under iscussion was Emerson.

One of the leading lawyers of the city read an essay upon the sage of Concord, which was characterized by his usual depth, breadth and brilliance. With the skill which a long nembership in the Philosophic society has given him, he drew a picture of Emerson as the philosopher. Every word had its weight, and carried to the audience ac learer impression of the sublime author.

Another essay, written and read by one of the Another essay, written and read by one of the charming matrons of the club, lent a charming contrast to the first paper by giving a graphic sketch of a personal meeting with Emerson.

But the most laugh-provoking feature of the programme was the second chapter of a novel, which was read by a lady well known in Atlanta for her originality, her wit, and her gracious kindness. This novel, which is collaborated by the entire club, was handled in her dainty hands with all the case of an habitual story teller. Her with all the ease of an habitual story teller. Her situations were strong, her language always vivid and striking, and her by-play, delicious. Edwards and Page, and all the host of other story writers rushing now to the front must look to their laurels, for this lady has shown that she can invent a novel os well as they res a Victory and Gets Out of North Carolina with His Cargo of Negroes-He Talks About His Arrest.

PEG LEG WILLIAMS.

THE REDOUBTABLE EMIGRANT AGENT GOES THROUGH ATLANTA.

Peg Leg Williams, the veteran emigrant agent, the Moses of the Carolina exodus, the Brer Fox of his profession, the luckiest, pluckiest, spryest labor agent south, passed through Atlanta yesterday.

He brought a carload of negroes from North Carolina with him-material evidence of his victory in Charlotte. It was a victory.

A great victory. Peg's reception by the railroad fraternity yesterday amounted to an ovation. He claims Atlanta as headquarters and home, and everybody here knows him.

Pacific but for the washout between here and Birmingham, which kept him here until yes-Peg is too well known to newspaper readers to require an introduction.

The continued story from Charlotte, N. C., in which Peg figured for three or four days, is also familiar to Constitution readers.

The first chapter, telling of his arrest for violation of the law about labor agents, was hopeful enough to have been written by Peg

But Peg wasn't released next day, as the first telegram anticipated. Telegrams of condolence were sent, care of the jail, Charlotte.

The next day again Peg's address was the jail, Charlotte.

The preliminary trial was had, and bond was refused. The joke was getting serious. The local T. P. A's met, adopting resolutions of condolence. Ticket Agent Kirby, of the East Tennessee, read a poem on the subject, the refrain like this:

retrain fike this:

Peg Leg Williams
Charlhotte jail,
Peg Leg Williams
Can't give bail.

Which met with general favor, and was forwarded to Charlotte along with the resolutions.

Notwithstanding the really serious aspect of affairs the prevailing opinion was that Peg, somehow or other, would light on his feet, and the confidence in his luck, or pluck, was not wistlead. He was in a high feather yesterday.

He was in a high feather yesterday.

"Get out!" in answer to a question. "I broke jail. Rescued by the niggers. Never had such a time. Kidnapped the sheriff. Brought him out a piece and dropped him. Come mighty near lynching me."

"Did you get those telegrams?"

"Never mind the telegrams. Hear about me drawing $1,000 in the lottery last month? I did."

The special from Charlette gave that Particular in a property of the proper

His name comes from the fact that he has a wooden leg—substitute for one lost in Forrest's cavalry over twenty-five years ago.

SOME PEOPLE YOU MEET:

Mr. Tom Cobb Jackson, not content with winning fame-and doubtless fortune-at the law, hing lame—and doubtless fortune—at the law, has become a lecturer. Not a professional lecturer, but a lecturer, nevertheless. His first effort in this line was made on yesterday, when he addressed the members of the graduating class of Atlanta Medical college on the subject of "Medical Jurisprudence." In an address, which is described by all who heard it as remarkably able, he discussed at length the relations between the legal and medical professions. He was list-ened to with deep interest, and at the conclusion of his talk, was heartily thanked by the members

Hon. Frank Colley, of Wilkes, came up from Washington yesterday on legal business. Colonel Colley came into the Kimball house with one of the Ohio farmers, who had been down looking at that garden spot of the earth—Wilkes county.

"I tell you what it is," said that gentleman whose name, as near as I could catch it, was Hay whose name, as near as I could catch it, was Haymire, "I am more than pleased with what I have seen in Georgia. I go back home fully determined to come down here again in the summer, and shall probably locate here. I know some of the members of our party, especially those who, like myself, are interested in nurseries, feel that Georgia opens up a great field to us, and you need not be surprised to have a number of new citizens from Ohio." citizens from Ohio.

All of which is a higher compliment to Georgia than it would be coming from other sources. The Miami valley, from which these visitors come, is about as near the garden spot of the earth as any place can be. If the lands of Wilkes and adjoining counties receive favorable criticism from these Miami valley farmers, then the estimate of them made by native Georgians is by no means

To travel with fourteen trunks, and that, too, in the face of the excess baggage rates of the south-ern railroads, would seem to the average man a foolhardy action. Yet that is what Mr. A. Draper, of New York, who is at the Kimball, makes a practice of doing. Mr. Draper sells crockery and glassware.

Senator Bob Whitfield came up from Whitfield yesterday.
"Business, not politics, my boy."

Professor Sternberg returned last night from DeFuniak, where he lectured before the Chatau-qua. The professor's lecture was so successful that an arrangement was made by which he will devote all his time pext summer to Chautanqua work, delivering lectures wherever a meeting is in ATLANTA IN BRIEF.

THE NEWS OF THE DAY IN CON-DENSED FORM.

Items of Interest About Atlanta and Atlanta Leaves from Our Notebooks.

Ministers to Meet.—A meeting of the Ministers' Evangelical association will be held next Monday at 10:30 a. m., in the lecture room of the First Methodist church.

Mr. Charles Roberts Elected.—The Gate City Guard held a meeting last night for the purpose of electing a junior second lieutenant. Mr. Charles Roberts was unanimously chosen to the position.

Mr. Cheek Improving.—Mr. J. H. Cheek, who was cut in the side by Mack Wheat on Thursday last is able to walk about his room, although he is suffering considerable from the effects of his wound. His friends hope that he will soon be well.

The Corncob Pipe.—The latest fad among the ultra-luxurious smokers is the corncob pipe with a reed stem. They are not quite as tony as a Havana, but there's lots of solid comfort in them, and they are got up in pretty good style. For Widow and Orphan.—Judge W. L. Calhoun, treasurer of the Davis widow and orphan fund, has collected up to date $7,189.74. He requests all trustees and others who have made collections for the fund to report to him at once, as he wishes to make a final report to General Gordon, in order that the trustees may make a final sometime?"

"Well, Sis Mary, I tell you. I done be'n had de rheumatiz in my laigs, an' den you know de weather's be'n so indiffer'nt." "Yes'm, dat's so."

To be Raffied Today.—The raffle of the fine crayon portrait of Mr. Grady, done by Miss Williams, will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock, at 57 West Mitchell street. The picture has been on exhibition in the business office of THE CON-STITUTION for several days and has been greatly admired. The last ticket left in the box will be the winning number. All those who are interested have been requested to be on hand promptly.

What They Brought.—The total amount brought by the auction sale of Inman park lots on Thurs-day, was $65,115. Besides this the company had previously sold at private sale, on the day before the auction, lots amounting to $23,000, making the total sale really amount to $88,315. On a number of lots purchased at the sale handsome residences will be erected at an early day. When half the lots in the park are disposed of the land company will hold the remaining ones at a considerably higher figure.

An Old Slave's Tribute.—An aged negro, with tears in his eyes, called at THE CONSTITUTION office yesterday and requested to see a reporter. He said he was Aleck McNab, and he once belonged to Mr. John McNab, at Eufaula, Ala.; that he had just heard of his death, and wanted to tell how much he loved his old master.

"I was born right on Mars John's place," said the old man. "I grew up thar with him, and I helped rear his six children. When the war was over and I was set free, I stayed right thar with my little masers and misses, and I never lef' um until dey all grew up and married and strangers come into de family. Then I come to Atlanta, but I love um all just the same, and if they ever wants old Aleck all they got to do is to send for him an' he goes to 'em. Since I heard of old massers death I been feelin' right sad, cause I know my time's coming soon, and I just want to say how I loved the old man, and how good he was to me all my life." "I was born right on Mars John's place," said the man, and how good he was to me all my life.'

The Alston Case

DECATUR, Ga., February 28 .- [Special.]-The arguments in the Alston murder case were concluded this afternoon and the case went to the jury. At 10 o'clock, as no decision had been reached, the jury were locked up for the night. After a critical study of the plan of this publica-tion, I am prepared to give it my hearty indorse-ment as well as my support. In its compass it greatly exceeds the Imperial English Dictionary which is the recognized standard in pronunciation and definition in Great Britain, and its colonies. It is, in my indepent not only an admirable lexicon accurate in its orthopy and etymology, but exhaustiva in its definitions. English it is an lexicon accurate in its orthopy and etymology, but exhaustive in its definitions. Besides it is an excellent substitude for the unwieldy encyclopedias that flood the market. SOUTHERN TRAVELERS.

THE ASSOCIATION WORKING IN THE INTEREST OF THE MEMBERS.

A Circular Which Has Been Sent Out to Livery Men-Lower Rates Wanted-The Meeting Tonight.

The Southern Travelers' association has for some time been considering the large sums of money which the members of the association are forced to pay for hack hire.

As a result of their deliberations a circular to livery stable proprietors has been issued, which it is hoped will procure special rates for traveling salesmen.

The circular states that fully $100,000 per annum is expended for livery service by members of the organization, and calls the livery men's attention to the fact that the largest proportion of their patronage comes from the members, who deem it no more than just that some reasonable concessions be granted them as an association.

It then says: "We therefore beg to advise you that the fol-lowing schedule of rates for livery service fur-nished to members of the Southern Travelers' association as maximum price has been agreed upon by this committee as equitable, just and reasonable, and we respectfully ask that the same be put into effect by you; said rates to be known strictly as 'S. T. A. Rates,'"

MAXIMUM RATES FOR SOUTHERN TRAVELERS

The stablemen are requested to grant the special rates only to those who can show regular certificates of membership in the Southern Travelers' association. With each circular is a printed agreement which the livery stable proprietors are re-quested to sign and return to Mr. Dean New-man, the chairman of the hotel committee of the association.

A Meeting Tonight. There will be a big meeting of the Southern Travelers' association at the chamber of commerce tonight. It is desired by the leaders that there will be a full attendance of all committeemen and embers as matters of profound importance will be discussed.

The association will endeavor to make a grand showing at the May meeting, and to accomplish this it is necessary that every man be present and that the committees organize and go to work with a will to make a success of the meeting.

Each member will be presented with a cer-tificate of membership during the meeting to-night, and the call is urgent for a large atten-March, April, May are the months in which to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no medicine equal to Hood's Sarsapa-rilla. Mrs. Jos. Lake, Brockway Centre, Mich., writes: "Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony. MAGNETIC CURES.

A DOCATOR WHO HEALS BY LAYING ON OF HANDS.

Hour at a Free Lecture at Centennia Hall-How the Afflicted are Magnetically Treated.

"My head aches." "Rheumatism in my arm."

"Sore throat-swollen awfully." "Nearly paralyzed." "I have fits-epileptic.

"Catarrh." 'Pain in my back." And a half dozen others had as many more several and particular ailments

They were all waiting to be cured, patiently abiding their time Healed by the laying on of hands.

It was at Centennial hall yesterday, at one of the free lectures and free healings of a prosional magnetic healer, who has recently pitched his tent in Atlanta. To Atlanta this magnetic healing business is an innovation in the curative art.

Dr. Evans is the name of the gentleman lecturer and performs the magnetic healing act at Centennial hall. Personally, he is as fine a looking man as you often meet. He is portly, with an affable, pleasantly smiling face, just such a man as you would naturally expect a magnetic healer to be.

Doubtless the doctor's snavity and winning ways are prime factors of his healing power.

Each day at 10 o'clock Dr. Evans devotes an hour to those who are unable to pay. He explains, at such times, why he can cure by a simply saying on the hands, and after this he proceeds to demonstrate his ability to carry it his cures on as many patients as present themselves, within the time limited.

It is scarcely necessary to say that since com ing to Atlanta the doctor has never lacked for patients at these free curings and lecturings, each of which is attended by crowds of various sizes and of various conditions. As a rule the condition is bad-physically. And the crowds -as a rule, the shiny face of the colored citizen is most conspicuous in its personnel.

Some come on crutches (doubtless expect ing, through the doctor's mysterious power, the miraculous restoration of their limbs by the laying on of hands) and others were there with eyes from which they could not see the light of day, and still others hoary with age, tottering under the weight of years.

They all wanted to be healed by the new mysterious power of which they had heard. 'De Bible sez de chillun ob de Lawd ken be cud by de la'n on ob hans, an bless de good Lawd I'ze cum ter see hit," was the remark of an old, before-the-war

When Dr. Evans began his demonstration of the magnetic cure art, there were quite a number of people present who were there to see the fun. They saw a little-such as it

A very green-looking country girl-a negro -was the first to invoke the doctor's power in dispelling her bodily infirmities. She had her kinky hair all twisted and tied up in yellowish twine, and walked across the floor with the tread of a man who is accustomed to following The day was quite warm, and the streak of oily perspiration that ran from the roots of her entwined head-covering, meeting and dripping down from under her chin, were evidence that the girl was sensible of the nature of the weather.

She was too modest to speak out, but whispered in the ear of the magnetic doctor, setting down in the chair placed for her.

"This girl has a very bad headache," he announced. "I'll cure that in a few moments." *Slightly drawing up the sleeves of his broadcloth coat, the doctor made a pass or two before the girl's face before touching her shiny skin.

'Oh, yes, I'll cure you in a few moments; just keep still now, I won't hurt you."

Then the magnetist suddenly took the girl's head between the palm of his two hands, one on each cheek, and began smoothing them upwards toward the crown of her head. He stood behind her, and each stroke grew more vigorous, with a sudden occasional change of direction, until it seemed that the girl's head would certainly forget to ache anyhow, in its efforts to keep its upright position on her efforts to keep its upright position on her samp cracking together of his fingers.

During his manipulation the doctor kept up o running explanation of the whys and whereforce, occasionally pausing to throw the per-spiration from his hands, which was accom-panied by a sharp cracking together of his fingers.

As the rubbing proceeded the grin on the patient's face broadened, and when finally the doctor placed his right hand on her forehead and the left against the back of her head and pressed it between them as in a vice, the grin reached its limit, and the girl exclaimed:

"Hits dun gone, doctah. Ize cured."

When she got up the doctor turned her round and round three or four times. She then took her seat in the audience, and was an interested spectator during the rest of the performance. A noticeable difference in her appearance was the absence of the perspiring streams which had shortly before rippled playfully down her ebony cheek.

streams which had shortly before rippled playfully down her ebony cheek.

The next sufferer was a tall, able-bodied looking negro, with a flaming red shirt and a very dilapidated coat and vest.

"Ize got hit in my arm—de rheumaticks."

He handled the said arm tenderly, glancing from it to the doctor, as if half afraid to risk it to his treatment. to his treatment.
"Oh, I'll take that out in no time. Take off your coat."

Off came the coat, very slowly and easily though, and the rheumatic patient approached near to the magnetic healer. The doctor caught hold of the sore arm and rubbed it vigorously a few times. The negro with the red shirt writhed and twisted under the treatment, but here it bravel. but bore it bravely. Then the doctor gave the stiff arm a sudden bend.

At the same time the patient audibly gave utterance to his feelings.

The doctor didn't mind this little interruption at all, but gav; the arm another twist, then another and another, until he had it working to and fro like a pump handle.

When he turned the negro loose, his arm still continued its gymnastic movements for several minutes. When the negro with the red shirt had put on his coat again and resumed his seat, he was smilling broadly.

"Hits all gone, boss. Ize gwine ter work termorrow. Hits dun gone sure."

He kept working his arm to be certain that it was sure, until the meeting broke up, and was still working it when he passed down stairs to the street.

was still working it when he passed down stairs to the street.

Next came a neatly-dressed girl with short, black hair and grayish blue eyes. She was giggling when she went up, and was giggling when she came away.

She was afflicted with swollen tonsils, and the doctor stool behind her chair and went through substantially the same manipulations which he had performed on the negro girl for her headache. He stroked her on both cheeks and under the chin, and rounding up by pressing her head tightly between his hands.

Of course she felt better when the doctor was through, and went back to her seat with cheeks considerably rosier than before the hands of the magnetic doctor were applied.

Then came an old gray-headed man walkfore the hands of the magnetic doctor were applied.

Then came an old gray-headed man, walking with a cane and a crutch. He hobbled from the audience to the doctor, and when the doctor was through he hobbled back again.

The doctor explained that the old man was too far gone in his decrepancy to be healed at one treatment.

ope treatment.

A little twelve-year-old white boy came forward to be cured of epilepsy.

This was another case that could not be cured, the doctor said, in a few minutes, but would require a month or more.

A number of others were also treated during the hour for headache, catarrh, neuralgia and anything else they imagined themselves afflicted with.

And most of themselves

And most of them came away thinking they felt better.

GEORGIA NEWS IN BRIEF.

AT THE THEATER.

Have you seen Lizzle Daly dance? If you haven't, go and see her. Talented legs? Well, rather. There is a girl who can literally outdance creation. With recollections of the grace and wonderful terpsichorean ability of Myra Goodwin still lingering in my mind, I have no hesitation in saying that here is one woman who is her superior. There simply never was anything like it. She is a dancer beyond any ever seen before in Atlanta. Then that little one, little Vine Daly, is the prettiest baby dancer on the stage today. Together, these two make a team which would prove a drawing card of remarkable power to any attraction.

people are clever. "McCarthy's Mishaps" is full of funn situations and roaring mishaps. It is a laugh and a whoop from the time the curtain goes up. Everybody enjoyed it last night, and many will doubtless go again to see the Mishaps of Mr. McCarthy and to see

The concert which was given last night at the Second Baptist church, for the benefit of the piano fund, proved a great success.

The concert was under the management of Mr. S. H. Cole, and he had every reason to be proud of the high musical standard to which the Sundayschool children have attained under his direction. Owing to the bad weather last night, many people who had purchased tickets were unable to be present; and in compliance with the general request Mr. Cole consented to repeat the programme given last night next Thursday evening.

Every number on the programme was finely rendered. The male quartette, however, made the hit of the evening. Their singing of the "Old Oaken bucket" so delighted the audience that at the close of the programme they were requested to repeat the song.

The violin and piano-duette by Professor Clark and Professor Denck was also specially fine, and was greeted with much applause. The solos by Professor Clark and by Professor Denck received encores, and Miss Geneva G. Moore's recitation was enthusiastically received.

TOPICS OF TRADE.

The Weekly Review of Business—Bad Effect of the Weather.

New York, February 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The unseasonable weather and growing doubts about the monetary weather and growing doubts about the monetary future do not help business, and the reports this week are less encouraging. Yet it must be remembered that the reports of dealers everywhere are liable to be much influenced by disappointments of past hopes, so that they consider trade unsatisfactory, because it is not up to their expectation, because distribution does not suffice to clear away stocks purchased—though the amount of transactions may be larger than a year ago. The enormous traffic during the latter part of last year showed that exceptionally heavy purchases were made and clearings indicate that settlements are in larger amount than a year ago. Philadelphia finds the iron market weak, and for other than best foundry grades dull and disappointing, speculative lots being all the time offered at prices below the present cost of production, and at Pittsburg iron is cheaper, Bessemer having tallen $1 per ton. There and at Philadelphia manufactured iron is also weaker in tone, without a change in price. Nails are weaker, and there is more anxiety for orders for plates and structional iron. But steel rails are reported firm.

Cotton was held without change, though receipts for the week are about equal to last year, and exports considerably larger. Coffee has been held at twenty cents, though there are growing doubts whether consumption will sustain such a price.
Sugar has not aliered, the price being apparently

In the stock market the tendency has been toward further depression, as is natural with money whrking more closely, and average has declined exhity-one cents per share for the week, not including trust on industrial stocks, which have been especially depressed. The desired monetary relief through larger treasury disbursements has not come, and government receipts exceeds its payments for the week by $2,900,000.

"Of the one thousand men, fifty had been killed outright, and over a hundred had been wounded. It was a terrible thing. As we began our sad search through the ruins, form after form of our comrades was found dead, dying or moaning in agony.

"One fair-haired boy, whom we found, brought tears to eyes that were accustomed to all the horrible sights of war. He was well dressed, and showed that he had been reared in luxury. COLONEL MARCELLUS AT THE HEAD OF A BIG CONSOLIDATION.

The Kentucky and Tennessee Coal Mines in a Deal, and Thornton Is President-More Than Two Millions Involved.

Colonel Marcellus Thornton comes to the front again.

This time the colonel figures as the most prominent personage in an immense deal in Kentucky and Tennessee coal lands, and he is now president of one of the largest organizations in the country.

In brief, the deal is the consolidation of Kentucky and Tennessee coal mines, which have an aggregate capital of $2,150,000, and employ over 1,340 men.

The deal was perfected at Knoxville, and on next Monday a meeting will be held there for the purpose of arranging all details.

The consolidated companies will hereafter be known as the Southern Jellico Coal company, and the headquarters of the company will be in Jellico, on the Kentucky side.

The companies in the consolidation are the Standard Coal and Coke company, capital $500,000; Jellico Mountain Coal and Transportation company, capital $300,000; Proctor Coal company. $600,000: East Tennessee Coal company, capital $250,000, and the Main Jellico Mountain Coal company, capital

ignalled stop at $500,000. The company has leased one hundred cars and has secured an option on one hundred and fifty more. The East Tennessee road will furnish a large number, and the company will be able to supply coal with promptness.

A meeting of the directors of the new com pany was to have been held at Jellico Friday for the purpose of electing other officers, but this was made impossible by the lack of transportation, the trains being unable to reach Jellico on account of high water and several landslides. A meeting will, however, be held Monday next, when the details of the consolidation will be arranged, and the workings of the great organization formally placed under one management.

Colonel Thornton thinks the deal means great things for the company, and thinks that the organization will make a great deal of money. "Our consolidation does not mean," said Colonel Thoraton to a Louisville reporter, "that we have combined against the people, for such is not the case. Our only object was to run the mines on a cheaper scale, and this we will be enabled to do by placing all the companies under one management, We have absorbed the great Southern Ceal company, of Knoxville, and its headquarters will hereafter be with the new company at Jellico. This change will enable us to mine much cheaper than ever before, and the price of coal in all probability will go down. In any event it will not advance, "The new company will also have charge of and operate the Jellico bank, and a department will be added by which all the buying of everything for all the mines will be done by one man. This will make merchandise and implements cheaper to the companies, and will enable us, buying in such large quantities, to sell to the miners, much cheaper than we can sell them now. In short, I think the consolidation will work to the good of everybody

Atlanta dealers are much interested in the change, as the bulk of the coal used here comes from mines controlled by this syndicate.

THE POPCORN TRADE. What a Dealer Has to Say About the Busi-

"We will not be here more than a month," said the popcorn man. "Why?"

"Well, it don't pay here like it does in northern cities. Our biggest day's sale from a stand was only about thirty dollars." "What, thirty dollars from one of those "Of course, but that isn't what we could do further north. It is a great business in the nickel line, and since we began business we have either bought out or sold to, every competitor that we have found doing business. The location is the thing, and the man who secures a good place can always command a good trade, especially in winter. It is not so good in summer, and it is getting very quiet here, even

"Your license is your chief expense."

"Yes, and when we leave here we are going to try a new scheme. We are going to put our stands on wheels and travel about the streets. Of course, when we get a crowd and obstruct the streets, the policeman will tell us to move on. We will do so, but we can move across the street and stand there until he walks the length of his beat and returns. Then we can roll our stand into a store at night and not have the trouble of taking down and putting up the apparatus every day."

"Is the machine patented?"

"No, there is no patent on it. Just that wire roaster, the gaseline lamp and those little butter pots and the box of salt. That is all there is in it, except the corn and the sacks. Do you know there is a man in Iowa who plants quite a large field of pop corn every year. He has a guarantee of two and a half cents a pound for every bit of it in the Chicago markets."

"Why wouldn't it pay to grow it here?" "It would pay. There is, a steady demand for it. Do you know that we pay two cents a pound more for it here than we do north?

Well, we do, and butter costs us seven cents a pound more here than it does there. That is one reason why we are going back. There is not as much money in the business here as there is north."

The Outlook for Police Con The election of two police com will follow the expiration of the terms of office of Commissioners J. W. English and W. H. Brotherton.

So far there are only four candidates in the field. These are the two present incumbents, who have served the city with zeal and fidelity during their respective terms of office, and Hon. W. H. Venable and Mr. Abe Fry. All these gentlemen are well known business men of prominence, and every one of them has plenty of influence with the powers

The friends of Captain English and Captain Brotherton consider that these gentlement have the inside track, the old adage of possess sion being nine points in law being applied in their cases.

Nevertheless, the other gentlemen wield a great deal of influence, and are known to be staunch and public-spirited citizens and men of ability, who are fully capable of filling offices of honor and trust. There is a good deal of wire-working, a good deal of quiet campaigning, and a lot of uessing as to the result.

In any event, the city is assured the serv ices of good men, who will not suffer her in erests to be sacrificed in any manner, shape or form, no matter who are elected commission

The race for recorder waxes apace. omebody is going to be elected-But whe?

That is the question which is agitating the minds of half a dozen candidates.

There is Mr. C. K. Mattox, assistant clerk of the council. He is a lawyer of ability, served his state with honor and fidelity as a soldier of the confederacy, and bears honorable scars that attest his bravery. He is a gentleman who has many warm friends and admirers who are do ing all they can to secure his election,

Mr. Ernest Kontz is one of the most popular candidates, and he, too, has a large following among the best men of the city. He will run a good race, and if elected will fill the position with honor and credit to himself and to the best interests of the city. Mr. Andy Calhoun is a young man of fine ability, and has a lot of influence that will be

The name of Dr. W. E. Foute, one of the stationhouse keepers, has been mentioned in connection with the office. A Letter From an Eminent Divine. Six months ago the writer of the following quiries from every quarter of the nation, under date of January 2, he writes:

"I am free from Catarrh. I believe that I could get a certificate to this effect from any competent physician. I have used no medicine within the last six months except King's Royal Germetner. My health is better than it has been in thirty years. I am in possession of information which warrants me in saying that the relief which I have experienced from the use of the medicine is not more certain and radical than that which it has brought to hundreds of persons in Georgia and other states.

I feel it to be my duty to say also, that the ef-brought to hundreds of persons in Georgia and other states.

I feel it to be my duty to say, also, that the effects of this remedy upon my wife have been even more signal and wonderful. She has been almost a life-long invalid from Nervous Headache, Neurripia and Rheumatism. In a period of thirty years she has scarcely had a day's exemption from pain. She has been using Germetuer about two months. A more complete transformation I have never witnessed. Every symptom of disease has disappeared. She appears to be twenty years younger, and is as happy and playful as a healthy child. We have persuaded many of our friends to take the medicine, and the testimony of all of them is that is a great remedy."

take the medicine, and the testimony of all of them is that is a great remedy."

Pastor First Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga. Royal Germetuer builds up from the first dose, the patient quickly feeling its invigorating and health-giving influence. It increases the appetite, aids digestion, clears the complexion, regulates the liver, kidneys, etc., and speedly brings bloom to the cheek, strength to the body and joy to the heart. For weak and debilitated females it is without a rival or a peer.

If you are suffering with disease and fail of a cure, send stamp for printed matter, certificates, etc.

Business will be continued at the same place by J. F. Cash & Co., dealers in grain and hay, also by W. H. Bird & Co., dealers in general produce.

This is the ideal way to broil meats.

There is no taint of coal-gas or smoke, and the meats are more tender and better in flavor than those broiled over the coals. The convenience or broiling in the oven will be appreciated by every house-keeper, and adds another to the many reasons why the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door should be preferred to all others now in the market.

DAWSON CELEBRATING.

REGULAR PROGRAMME IN EFFECT ON THE COLUMBUS SOUTHERN.

rlem to Appling—Perry to Hawkinsville Rome to Tunnel Hill—Dover and Statesboro.

Dawson is proud of the Columbus Southern and people from there say the town is booming as it never did before.

There is now in effect on the road a regular schedule, giving a daily train each way, with an extra train on Sunday.

The schedule—Leave Dawson at 6:40 a. m. arrive in Columbus at 10 a. m.

Leave Colubums at 3 p. m.; arrive in Daw-Extra train on Sundays arriving at Dawson at 11:25 a. m., and leaving at 3:40 p. m.

Dover and Statesboro.

Dover and Statesboro.

Mr. George P. Curry, of Augusta, has been elected president and general manager of the Dover and Statesboro railroad, succeeding Mr. Fred T. Lockhart. Major J. H. Burkhalter has sold his interest to Mr. Curry and will give his time and money to the building of a railroad from Augusta to connect with the Swainsboro railroad at Midville. Captain Burkhalter the conductor of the Dover and Statesboro railroad will be the construction superintendent on the road being built by his father. It has been demonstrated that a people, with a few pushing men, can have a railroad without much expenditure of money. There are not over $6,000 worth of bonds held by the citizens of Bulloch at this time. One year ago it cost $4 a ton to put guano in Statesboro from the Central. Now it costs about eighty cents. A saving of $3 a ton on 2,000 tons is $6,000 in one season to the farmers of Bulloch.

The Dover and Statesboro road was built about a year ago by Augusta parties, and it has been successfully operated since the opening day. The road is about ten miles long, and is located in Bulloch county, and connects Statesboro, the county seat, with Dover. The road passes through a heavily timbered section, which is a big resource for the company. Another new office of the company has recently been instituted—that of vice-president—to which office Mr. J. L. Fleming has been elected.

Perry to Hawkinsville.

There is authority for the statement that the Central contemplates building a road from near the present terminus of the Atlanta and Florida on to Savannah. The plan is for the Central to extend the road from Perry on to Hawkinsville and then on to Savannah. This will be a great thing for Hawkinsville, giving her competing lines to the northwest and to the coast.

Rome to Tunnel Hill. The prospects for the building of a railroad through Armuchee are flattering. The line will be from Rome by Echols's mill, and up the creek to Taylor's Ridge, which it will follow to Tunnel Hill.

MR. ALEX. HOPKINS'S FUNERAL. Laid to Rest by Tender Hands After Weary

Months of Pain. All that was mortal of young Alex Hopkins was laid to rest by tender hands in the family lot in Oakland at 4 o'clock yesterday after

The services were conducted at the residence of Judge J. L. Hopkins, No. 45 Forest avenue, at 3 o'clock, by Rev. Dr. H. C. Morrison, in a touchingly solemn manner.

Many friends were present to add their con-lolences to the bereaved family, and to share in paying their last respects to the worth and character of the dead young lawyer.

The pall-bearers were chosen from among his young friends and comrades, and were Mr. Sanders McDaniel, Monroe, Ga.; Mr. Thomas R. R. Cobb, Athens, Ga.; Mr. Jeff Pierce, Mr. Albert Hightower, Mr. Harry Snook, Mr. Robert Riley, Mr. Will Drake and Mr. T. A.

Many are the expressions of regret over the untimely ending of this hopeful young life, and the family have the heartfelt sympathies of the people of Atlanta in their sad loss.

CUT IN THE FACE. Rivals at Fulton County Spinning Mills Fight.

Wiley McGwinn slashed A. S. Cannon across the face at the Fulton County Spinning mills early yesterday morning.

The wound was not a dangerous one, but will leave an ugly scar. The trouble was a combination of love, revenge and disappointment. Both the boys, who are about sixteen years of age, were employed at the mills, and both fell in love with same girl, a young miss who is a weaver at the mills. A few days ago the boys had a falling out and fought. McGwinn was the aggressor and

Yesterday morning he waylaid Cannon, just as the latter was going to work, and made a wicked thrust at him with a keen-bladed pocket-knife. Happily, the blow was not a true one, and did not penetrate any vital part. The wounded boy was carried to the factory hotel. where the wound was dressed.

McGwinn escaped, going in the direction of his home at Clifton, and evaded arrest.

Next Monday Kate Castleton, a favorite everywhere, will appear in "A Paper Doll."

Miss Castleton has something about her that is simply irresistible, and for years she has been growing in popularity throughout the country.

Detroit Journal: If there was any one in the Detroit opera house last night who did not laugh long, loud and heartily at the fun made by Kate Castleton and her company of comedians, that person must have been deaf, durab and blind. "A Paper Doll" has no literary merit, but it has a bright, sparkling dialogue, plentifully sprinkled with humor of the vintage of 1889. Miss Castleton's dressing was in variety and exquisite taste, and her display of diamonds provoked the suggestive "oh, my'?" of her female auditors.

"THE DIXIE DOCTOR,

But Few Live Who Knew Him-Interred on Rosemound Plantation, Montgomery County.

From the Brunswick, Ga., Times.

There are but few persons in Georgia today to lay claim to having had an intimate acquaintance with Hön. George M. Troup, who was governor of Georgia from 1823 to 1827.

Most of those who are now bent with age, and whose hair is silvered by years, were mere children then. But there is at least one man in Georgia who was a personal friend of the governor. That man is Mr. Thomas Davis, Sr., of Montgomery county. Mr. Davis was in Brunswick yesterday, and in conversation with a Times reporter, said:

"It is comparatively unknown, but Governor Troup's remains are interred on Rousemound plantation, in Montgomery county, about 130 miles from Brunswick. The grave is on my place and I care for it, as if beneath the marble slab which covers it the remains of my father were resting. I never had a better or truer friend than George Troup."

AN EVENTFUL LIFE. "You knew the governor intimately, then, did you?" asked the reporter.

"Yes; we were great friends, George Troup "Yes; we were great friends, George Troup and I. He was eighteen years older than I, but when a mere boy I would follow him when he was on a hunt, and sit by him, an attentive listener, as he would tell some yarn, of which he always had a good store. I remember when he was elected to the legislature in 1801-2-3-4. Then in 1806 he was sent to congress. In 1815 he retired to private life, but in 1816 he was elected United States senator over Dr. Bibb. He was continued two years in the senate, and in 1823 he was made governor of Georgia. The first vote I ever cast was for Troup for governor, and I remember it as welk as if it were but yesterday. During his term as governor General LaFayette was a guest of the state. The closest intimacy had always existed between Governor Troup and myself, so on the occasion of LaFayette's reception on the bluff at Savannah, in 1825, I was there at the written request of the governor, my friend. I keard George Troup's address af welcome, which ran something like this:
"Welcome, LaFayette' General, 'tis little more

George Troup's address at welcome, which ran something like this:

"Welcome, LaFayette! General, 'tis little more than ninety years since the founder of this state first set foot upon the bank upon which you stand. Now, 400,000 people open their arms to receive you. Thanks to a kind providence it called you to the standard of independence in the helpiessness of our revolution. It has preserved you that a your latter days the glory of a great empire might be reflected back-on you amid the acclamations of millions. The scenes which are to come will be for you comparatively tranquil and placid. There will be no more of dungeons, no more fears of tyrants. Oh, sir, what a consolation for a man who has passed through seas of trouble, that the millions of bayonets which guard the blessings we enjoy, stand between you and them! But enough! Welcome, general! Thrice welcome to the state of Georgia.

Welcome, general! Thrice welcome to the state of Georgia.

In 1827 Troup retired froin the government, determined to lead a private life, but despite his avowed intention, and his protestations, he was recalled to the United States senate by the legislature. Troup didn't want the place, and I accompanied him on his memorable drive from his home in Laureus county to Milledgeville, where he went to prevent his election. But he was too late, so taking the office that had been imposed upon him, he served in congress until 1834, when he really retired to the gress until 1834, when he really retired to the privacy of his home."

CHARACTERISTICS OF TROUP.

"Can you tell me anything of Troup's characteristics?"

"Yes; he was naturally fervid, scrupnlously honest, and devoted to his country. He was fend of hunting. He was fond of his toddy also, but never drank until just before dinner; after that he would drink all he wanted until hed time. He was the least hit secentics and atter that he would drink all he wanted unti-bed time. He was the least bit eccentric, and wrote his own epitaph. I don't recall the exact words, but he evidently fore-saw the late war, and on his tomb-stone he begs the people to stand by their country and their arms in defense of it. We have ceremonies at his grave every Fourth of July. I am ninety-two years old myself ond don't expect to live long, so come up the next Fourth of July and I will show you a memorial service that will evince the depth of true friendship."

CAROLINIANS IN THE CHARGE.

The Gallant Conduct of Pierce. Butler's Men. CHARLESTON, S. C., February 28 .- [Special] At the Knights of Pythias banquet held in this city recently, the following remarkable story was told by Mr. Gilmore Simms, a son of the famous South Carolina novelist and historian He was referring to the Mexican war. It was referring to the Mexican war.

It was on one of the bloodiest fields of Mexico, he said. The battle had raged with great obstinacy for hours, and although the Mexicans had fought for every inch of ground with that desperate valor which is so characteristic that desperate valor which is so characteristic of all races reared under a tropte sun, they had matched against them a fee of equal courage, and the victory, though dearly bought, was just within the grasp of the American army. There was one point, however, which was still in the hands of the enemy, and their commander, realizing that it was a forlorn hope, had massed the remnant of the flower of the Mexican chiraly at this root, and determined Mexican chivalry at this post, and determined to hold it at all hazards. THE BRUNT OF BATTLE.

General Shilds saw that to win the day this point must be reduced, and he resolved that it should be taken. But it was a desperate resolve. The Mexicans had been pressed back from their original position only by rapeated terrific charges, which in every in-stance had left hundreds of drd and wounded on the field. They had not surrendered an inch of ground until they had covered it with the bodies of their bravest men, and now as they took a last stand, nerved to desperation by the misfortunes of the day, they presented a compact front, bristling with pikes and lances which General Shield's practiced eye told him would be hard to break, and which he kuew could not be broken without a tremendous onslaught. He determined to call for wolvers were detailed. he knew could not be broken without a tremendous onslaught. He determined to call for volunteers to do the desperate work, and applying to the commander of a Pennsylvania regiment, he met with a declination. Not discouraged, however, he asked a New York regiment to undertake the charge, but he was again mortified to find another portion of his army unwilling to risk so desperate a game. Wheeling his horse, the general galloped to the front of the Palmetto regiment, and demanded of Colonel Pierce M. Butler if his men would be willing to clinch the victory by this charge. "Yes, sir," was the gallant colonel's response, "every one of them; and to the very death!"

"every one of them; and to the very death!"

INTO THE MEXICAN RANKS.

In less than a minute the regiment, with Colonel Butler riding foremost in the ranks, swept like a tornado upon the Mexican front. The struggle; as General Shields had anticipated, was a terrible one. The Mexicans met the onslaught with an unbroken line, and for a few moments sustained their position with magnificent yalor. But their hot Spaniard blood was no match for the superior powers and cool, unflinching temper of their more northern foes, and the struggle was brief. Slowly they were driven back, contending desperately, but their front was broken and, unable to rally his men to the breach, their leader ordered a retreat and the day was won. But just here comes one of the prettiest parts of the story. Commanding a company in the New York regiment that had declined the charge was Mayne Reid, that delightful writer of adventure by field and flood, over whose pages every boy has dwelt with so much interest. Reid was not only a novelist, but he was as brave a soldier as ever faced death, and his whole temper was aroused by the cowardly refusal of his colonel to undertake the charge. When he saw the South Carolinians preparing for the advance he appealed to his men to follow them, but out of his entire company but eleven could be found who were willing to run so desperate a risk. With these eleven Captain Reid left his command and joined the Palmetto regiment, and in the bloody hand-to-hand contest that sollowed these twelve brave New Yorkers did much to secure the fortunes of the day. Their names are now forgotten, but their gallantry will five always in the memory of those who admire brave deeds and love brave men.

Building the always in the memory of those who admire brave deeds and love brave men. INTO THE MEXICAN RANKS.

IT WAS AN APPARITION,

For Branan is Still at the Asylum—The Facts in the Case.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., February 28.—[Special.]—The special telegram to The Constitumon from Sylvania, Ga., regarding the esca-pades of Pope Branan, the alleged escaped lunatic from Screven county, appears to be a new recital of "Much Ado About Nothing." The article was such a serious reflection against the management of the asylum that your correspondent today made a thorough investigation with a view of ascertaining the true facts of the

The records show that Branan escaped from the asylum about thirteen years ago, when the institution was under the management of Dr. Green, and was not returned until last September. He escaped in January, and was brought back by the asylum authorities on February 7th. Since that time he has been confined in the upper story of the building, four floors above the ground, so it must have been an apparition that "again appeared upon the scene last Saturday."

In an interview with Dr. Powell to-day, that gentleman said: "As soon as the escape was known, we wrote the ordinary of Screven county, also to Branan's wife, informing them of the escape and requesting that he be returned at my expense. As soon as we learned that he had returned home, we sent for him and he was brought back. He has always been kept under as cless confinement as his mental and physical health would permit. His disease is not a permanent insanity, but temperary illusions, and it would not only be inhuman to keep him under constant guard or locked up, but would be demoralizing to other patients. Cases of this kind cannot be treated as an incurable derangement, and they will not permit constant confinement. We keep them as closely confined as their health will permit. I don't know what Branan's condition was during the thirteen years that he remained at home, but since he has been at the asylum he has had no homicidal illusion, or any other dangerous spells. Where fifteen hundred people are treated humanely, there is no way of preventing an occasional escape. Even in the penitentiary, with armed guards and bound with fetters, there are escapes, and the wonder is that escapes from the asylum are not more frequent. The asylum is not a prison, and patients are not subjected to the ball and chain treatment. The report sent THE Constitution not only does me an injustice, but injures the usefulness of the instition, for its force cannot be fully counteracted. I am certain THE Constitution will give a correction the same prominence it gave the innary of Screven county, also to Branan's wife, informing them of the escape and requesting I am certain THE CONSTITUTION, will give a correction the same prominence it gave the injurious article.

Dr. Powell is known to the people of the state as one of the leading men of America in the treatment of insarity, and his clean record in the asylum here will show no spot or blemish in an investigation. The friends of the asylum here urge this speedy correction.

BILL PLEDGER'S SON .

Goes Back Among the People Whose Mail

He Had Robbed.
ATHENS, Ga., February 28.—[Special.]—The arrival of young Bill Pledger in Athens has caused a great deal of surprise and consterna-tion among the citizens. When he was arrested on such a serious charge, and taken to the Atlanta jail, our citizens thought he would reap the full punishment for his crime, and remain in jail until his trial came off.

A QUEER POINT. It is not known here why his bond should have been reduced from two thous-and to fifteen hundred dollars, but this step on the part of the part of the United States court in Atlanta is condemned universally. The extent of Pledger's thefts are unknown, but it is quite probable that they would amount to more than his bond has been placed at. The action of the Atlanta court has been the topic of much criticism here.

THE CHECK TURNS UP.

The twelve hundred-dollar check, which was upposed to have been stolen from the mails by young Pledger, has at last turned up. Its payment was stopped at the banks, and it has been found. Whether it was sent in by some unknown party or not is not known.

Shooting for the Championship.

Thomasvillee, Ga., February 28.—[Special.]
A great shooting-match between the Thomasville and Monticello guns to decide the ownership of the championship cup, took place this afternoon on the grounds of the club of this city. Thomasville is victorious, the score standing 217 to 193. Cicero Young made the best record in Thomasville team, breaking twenty-three out of possible twenty-five. J. S. Hoey made the best record in the Monticello team, breaking twenty-one out of twenty-five. twenty-five.

The Voyage of Life.

Life is beset by evils and changes on every de. From birth to manhood and from manside. From birth to manhood and from manhood until old age eternal vigilance is the price of health. There is one remedy that has saved many a rickety, headaching, blood poisoned, dyspeptic mortal to a life of usefulness and robust health. It is known as Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla and it is a Sarsaparilla that is a Sarsaparilla. Not a thousand doses of molasses and water for a dollar, but a concentrated essence of the best virtues of sarsaparilla and other alterative herbs. It heals, it cures where other sarsaparilla and blood remedies have no more effect than so much stagnant water. If your system craves an alterative, if water. If your system craves an alterative, if you value life you do yourself a great injustice if you fail to try this excellent remedy. De-mand it of your druggist and take no other.— Sidner Times

THE STOCK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, February 28.—The stock market was again dull and narrow with all the animation in a few stocks which received attention from the bears. The approach of the first of the month, as usual, gave the bears an opportunity to bid up the proper rate upon people persons before the calling. money rate upon needy borrowers, as the calling of money needed for interest and dividends paya-ble on the first, necessitates the shifting of loans. This story was the bears' chief reliance, and rates were made as high as ten per cent at one time, though they held up well until the close, the last loan being at eight per cent. As a means for depressing quotations, however, there was comparatively a failure, and only in a few stocks, which are subject to influences peculiar to themselves, was any progress made in a down-ward direction. The money question is again, however, a prominent one in Wall street, and the nowever, a prominent one in wall street, and the eyes of the street are turned to Washington at present for some indications of a purpose to relieve the stringency, which, although not pressing at present, keeps the market within certain limits, The abolishment of a large amount of the tax on sugar, or the passage of the bill are regarded us the most feasible methods by which the necessary backing could be given speculation, and Londou prices were again materially higher this morning, but this market failed to follow. As the bears bought a marked pressure to boar immediately upon Northern Pacific pre-ferred. Union Pacific and bituminous coal stock as well as sugar refiners were, and for a time declines in those shares were rapid and important. New England also came in for some attention from the same quarter later in the day, but no impression was made upon it and it was soon abandoned. The weak features of the day were bituminous coal shares, and Tennessee day were bituminous coal shares, and Tennessee went down to 54 and Colorado coal to 42½, but while the latter remained at near the lowest, the former rallied late in the day and more than recovered the loss. The support which it received festerday was apparently lacking in the early dealings, but it came at last and the upward movement was equily as sharp as the decline had been. Sugar was affected by reports in regard to the sugar refinery in San Francisco. Boston was a liberal seller, but bought again late in the day. Union Pacific was the only stock among the usually ac-Pacific was the only stock among the usually active shares which showed any real weakness, but foreigners were buyers and held it up within a fraction of its first price. A strong point in the list was Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, which mounted from 67½ to 69½ upon the announce-ment that the company's contracts for coal are 300 per cent. larger than up to the same time last There was generally a better tone to the year. There was generally a better tone to the market in the afternoon, but no material improvement was made and the close was dull and steady generally at a shade under opening figures and charges show a majority of declines. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, February 28—An unsettled and rather nervous feeling existed in wheat today. Trading was good and again represented considerable outside business, with local operators also trading side business, with local operators also trading quite freely. The opening was ½c higher than yesterday's closing and quickly advanced ½c, receded ½c, again advanced to outside figures, eased off, fluctuated within established range, and the closing was about ½c lower than yesterday. Cold weather was reported in Missouri, the thermometer being down to zero. Reports of damage to crops received again from Michigan. From central Indiana advices were received reporting damage to growing wheat.

The market opened the same to a shade above the closing prices of yesterday, was firm for a time, advanced a trifle and eased off %c@½c, prominent local backers selling freely, ruled steady and closed ¼c@½c lower than yesterday.

lower than yesterday.

Oats were active and firm early but weaker and lower later, but the last sales were at about the rame as yesterday.

An increased business was transacted in pork, mainly in contracts for May, and the feeling was stronger. Prices ruled 2½c.25c higher, and closed comparatively easier at medium figures.

Lard—A good business was transacted, and the feeling was decidedly stronger. Prices ruled 2½c.25c higher, and the market closed rather firm. Considerable interest was manifested in short ribs. The feeling was stronger and prices ruled 2½c.25c higher.
